Christian Lyrics :

CHIEFLY SELECTED FROM MODERN AUTHORS.

"Such songs have power to quiet
The restless pulse of care ;
And come like the benediction
That follows after prayer !"

P R E F A C E.

IN this little volume we have endeavoured to string together such Christian Lyrics as seem to us specially adapted to be the expression of home thoughts, and the companions of every-day life.

Mingled with many lyrics hitherto unpublished, or but little known, will be found some, the words of which have long been familiar to us all. If an excuse for this be needed, it must be found in the feeling, which we trust others will share, that—even were it not for their intrinsic beauty—they are enshrined in so many hearts, and consecrated by so many long-cherished and hallowed associations, that no collection of sacred poetry would be complete without them.

We have endeavoured, as far as possible, to print these lyrics in their original form: except in one or two instances, we have not knowingly omitted any of the verses; but should occasional incompleteness, or deviation from the true reading, be detected, it must be accounted for by the difficulty of tracing some of these pieces to their source, and to the consequent necessity of trusting to collections, the editors of which have not felt themselves bound to be equally scrupulous.*

To those authors who have so willingly permitted us to insert their poems, and to Messrs. Longman and Co., who have allowed us to transfer some pieces from Lyra Germanica, we beg here to offer our deserved acknowledgments.

Should our little collection be of any service in suggesting sacred thoughts, or exciting holy feelings, we shall not regret that we have brought together, for the cheering of others' hearts, what has been such a source of joy and refreshing to our own.

* Since the publication of the second edition, our attention has been called to an error of the kind above referred to. The two verses of the poem beginning "Still nigh me, O my Saviour, stand," page 108, are taken from hymns by different authors; the first is by Charles Wesley, and the second is part of a hymn translated from the German by John Wesley. The hymn in its present form was borrowed from a collection where it had grown dear and familiar to us, and as the pieces alluded to are too long to insert entire, we prefer retaining it as it is, hoping that its beauty will excuse this deviation from our rule.

Christian Lyrics.

Sleep.

"He giveth His beloved sleep."—Psalm cxxvii.

F all the thoughts of God that are
Borne inward into souls afar,
Along the Psalmist's music deep,
Now tell me if there any is,
For gift or grace, surpassing this—
"He giveth His belovèd, sleep"?

What would we give to our beloved?
The hero's heart, to be unmoved,
The poet's star-tuned harp, to sweep,
The patriot's voice, to teach and rouse,
The monarch's crown, to light the brows?
He giveth His beloved, sleep.

What do we give to our beloved?
A little faith all undisproved,
A little dust to overweep,
And bitter memories, to make
The whole earth blasted for our sake:
He giveth His beloved, sleep.

"Sleep soft, beloved," we sometimes say,
But have no tune to charm away
Sad dreams that through the eyelids creep:
But never doleful dream again
Shall break the heavy slumber when
He giveth His beloved, sleep.

O earth, so full of dreary noises!
O men, with wailing in your voices!
O delvèd gold, the wailers heap!
O strife, O curse, that o'er it fall!
God strikes a silence through you all,
And giveth His beloved, sleep.

His dews drop mutely on the hill,
His cloud above it saileth still,
Though on its slope men sow and reap:
More softly than the dew is shed,
Or cloud is floated overhead,
He giveth His beloved, sleep.

Ay, men may wonder while they scan
A living, thinking, feeling man
Confirmed in such a rest to keep;
But angels say, and through the word,
I think their happy smile is heard—
"He giveth His beloved, sleep."

For me, my heart that erst did go
 Most like a tired child at a show,
 That sees through tears the mummers leap,
 Would now its wearied vision close,
 Would childlike on His love repose
 Who giveth His belovèd, sleep.

And friends, dear friends, when it shall be
 That this low breath is gone from me,
 And round my bier ye come to weep,
 Let one, most loving of you all,
 Say "Not a tear o'er her must fall!
 'He giveth His belovèd, sleep.'"

The Peace of God.

We ask for peace, O Lord!
 Thy children ask Thy peace:
 Not what the world calls rest,
 That care and toil should cease,
 That through bright sunny hours
 Calm life should fleet away,
 And tranquil night should end
 In smiling day;—
 It is not for such peace that we should pray.

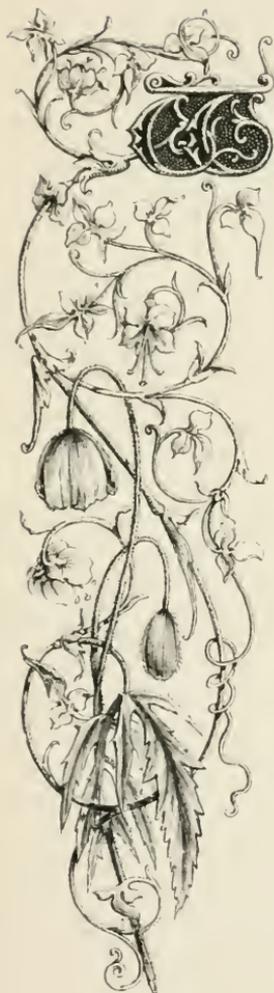

We ask for peace, O Lord!
 Yet not to stand secure.
 Girt round with iron pride,
 Contented to endure:
 Crushing the gentle strings
 That human hearts should know,
 Untouched by others' joy
 Or others' woe;—
 Thou, O dear Lord, wilt never teach us so.

We ask Thy peace, O Lord!
Through storm, and fear, and strife,
To light and guide us on,
Through a long struggling life:
While no success or gain
Shall cheer the desperate fight.
Or nerve, what the world calls,
Our wasted might:—
Yet passing through the darkness to the light.

It is Thine own, O Lord,
Who toil while others sleep;
Who sow with loving care
What other hands shall reap:
They lean on Thee entranced,
In calm and perfect rest:
Give us that peace, O Lord,
Divine and blest,
Thou keepest for those hearts who love Thee best.

Prayer.

WHEN prayer delights thee least, then learn to say,
Soul, now is greatest need that thou should'st pray.

Crooked and warped I am, and I would fain
Straighthen myself by thy right line again.

Oh come, warm sun, and ripen my late fruits ;
Pierce, genial showers, down to my parchèd roots.

My well is bitter ; cast therein the tree,
That sweet henceforth its brackish waves may be.

Say what is prayer, when it is prayer indeed ?
The mighty utterance of a mighty need.

The man is praying, who doth press with might
Out of his darkness into God's own light.

White heat the iron in the furnace won,
Withdrawn from thence, 'twas cold and hard anon.

Flowers from their stalks divided, presently
Droop, fail, and wither in the gazer's eye.

The greenest leaf divided from its stem,
To speedy withering doth itself condemn.

The largest river from its fountain head
Cut off, leaves soon a parched and dusty bed.

All things that live from God their sustenance wait,
And sun and moon are beggars at His gate.

All skirts extended of thy mantle hold,
When angel hands from heaven are scattering gold.

The Cloud.

LITTLE cloud was fashioned
In a summer hour,
By the love impassioned
Of the sun and shower.
All day it basked in sunlight,
On the heaven's warm blue,
Round lilies through the dun night,
It hung in dew.

Once when dawn was leading
In the hot young day,
This little cloud, speeding
Through the ether gray,
Seemed to float and sail
On the bright sky's bosom,
Like a dew-drop pale
On a blue-bell blossom.

So close under heaven
Did it glide and fleet,
That I thought it riven
By some angel's feet,
When the breezes parted
Its veiling screen,
And blue glimpses darted
Into sight between.

As I gazed came breathings
On a zephyr's wings,
As of wild-wind wreathings
Round Æolian strings ;
'Twas a lark far hidden
In the little cloud,
"Singing songs unbidden,"
Full, and free, and loud.

Oh, it came down-streaming
The clear air along,
Like rills roused from dreaming,
Like a shower of song.
It made me glad and bright,
Brighter every minute,
Till I blest the cloudlet white,
And the spirit in it.

Then the sun's noon-splendour
Filled the cloud with light,
Though a soft and tender
Yet intensest white ;
And the wanderer weary
Joyed that it was made,
For it gave to him a cheery
And a grateful shade.

Did the semblance of a shadow
 On the wide sky pass?
 It dusked the quiet meadow,
 And the glistening grass;
 It dimmed the forest fountain,
 And the clover lea;
 It deepened on the mountain,
 Darkened on the sea.

Still though earth was shaded,
 And a gloom was there,
 Never dulled or faded
 Was the cloudlet fair;
 For it ever sailed
 Up so close to heaven,
 That nothing could have failed
 Of the beauty given.

Now a lustre glowing
 In the silent west,
 From the sun was flowing
 As he turned to rest;
 And the cloud borne sunward,
 Ever nearer, nigher,
 Ever floated onward
 Towards the sunset fire;

All its being belted
 With a glory bright,
 While into heaven it melted
 In a dream of light.
 Never more glance crossed it
 In the sky-heart far,
 But where I had lost it
 Shone the evening star.

Like the cloud, keep union
 With the pure and high,
 Be thy communion
 Beyond the sky;
 So all love and graces,
 And a light divine,
 Shall have pleasant places
 In that heart of thine.

And from thee will shower,
 Upon all around,
 A most precious dower,
 Like the shade and sound,
 Like the music blessing
 Of lark's ziralet,
 Like the shadow's refreshing
 In the summer heat.

If trouble and sadness
 Be around, above,
 Thou wilt drink deep gladness
 From thy heaven of love;
 As when earth was covered
 With a twilight shroud,
 Richer radiance hovered
 Round the little cloud.

And when life is ending,
 Oh, how dear to die,
 Like the cloudlet, blending
 With the glorious sky!
 And when un beholden
 As its beauties are,
 To have memories, golden
 As the lovely star!

The Ivy.

THE ivy in a dungeon grew,
 Unfed by rain, uncheered by dew ;
 Its pallid leaflets only drank
 Cave moistures foul and odours dank.

But through the dungeon grating high,
 There fell a sunbeam from the sky :
 It slept upon the grateful floor
 In silent gladness evermore.

The ivy felt a tremor shoot
 Through all its fibres to the root ;
 It felt the light, it saw the ray,
 It strove to issue into day.

It grew, it crept, it pushed, it clomb,
 Long had the darkness been its home ;
 But well it knew, though veiled in night,
 The goodness and the joy of light.

Its clinging roots grew deep and strong ;
 Its stem expanded firm and long ;
 And in the currents of the air
 Its tender branches flourished fair.

It reached the beam—it thrilled, it curled,
 It blessed the warmth that cheers the world ;
 It rose towards the dungeon bars—
 It looked upon the sun and stars.

It felt the life of bursting spring,
 It heard the happy skylark sing ;
 It caught the breath of morns and eves,
 And woo'd the swallow to its leaves.

By rains, and dews, and sunshine fed,
Over the outer wall it spread;
And in the day-beam waving free,
It grew into a stedfast tree.

Upon that solitary place
Its verdure threw adorning grace,
The mating birds became its guests,
And sang its praises from their nests.

Would'st know the moral of this rhyme?
Behold the heavenly light and climb!
Look up, O tenant of the cell,
Where man, the prisoner, must dwell.

In every dungeon comes a ray
Of God's interminable day,
On every heart a sunbeam falls,
To cheer its lonely prison walls.

The ray is Truth. O soul, aspire
To bask in its celestial fire;
So shalt thou quit the glooms of clay,
So shalt thou flourish into day.

So shalt thou reach the dungeon grate,
No longer dark and desolate;
And look around thee, and above,
Upon a world of light and love.

Onward.

ONWARD! the goal thou seekest
Is worthy the quest of a life,
And love can give to the weakest
Courage and strength for the strife.

High is the prize above thee,
In the light of that golden sky;
The ladder 's not all of sunshine,
Whereon thou must climb so high.

Earth's shadows and griefs have darkened,
Earth's sorrows have shaded its light,
But rays from the sunshine of heaven
Each upward step make bright.

Sometimes the glory paleth,
And its brightness disappears:
'Tis only thine eye that faileth,
Or is dimmed by earthborn tears.

Onward! our cry for ever,
Till our glorious goal be won,
Mid the brightness fading never
Of the light-enshrouded sun.

“Neber hasting, neber resting.”

EVER hasting, never resting,
With a firm and joyous heart,
Ever onward slowly tending,
Acting, aye, a brave man's part.

With a high and holy purpose,
Doing all thou hast to do ;
Seeking ever man's upraising,
With the highest end in view.

Undepressed by seeming failure,
Unelated by success ;
Heights attained, revealing higher,
Onward, upward, ever press.

Slowly moves the march of ages,
Slowly grows the forest king,
Slowly to perfection cometh
Every great and glorious thing.

Broadest streams from narrowest sources,
 Noblest trees from meanest seeds,
 Mighty ends from small beginnings,
 From lowly promise, lofty deeds.

Acorns which the winds have scattered,
 Future navies may provide ;
 Thoughts at midnight whispered lowly,
 Prove a people's future guide.

Such the law enforced by nature
 Since the earth her course began ;
 Such to thee she teacheth daily,
 Eager, ardent, restless man.

"Never hasting, never resting,"
 Glad in peace, and calm in strife ;
 Quietly thyself preparing
 To perform thy part in life.

Earnest, hopeful, and unswerving,
 Weary though thou art, and faint.
 Ne'er despair, there's One above thee,
 Listing ever to thy plaint.

Stumbleth he who runneth fast,
 Dieth he who standeth still ;
 Not by haste nor rest can ever
 Man his destiny fulfil.

"Never hasting, never resting,"
 Legend fine, and quaint, and olden,
 In our thinking, in our acting,
 Should be writ in letters golden.

Enoch,

HAST thou not seen at break of day,
One only star the east adorning,
That never set or paled its ray,
But seemed to sink at once away
Into the light of morning?

From it the sage no portent drew,
It came to light no meteor fires,
But silver shone the whole night through,
On hawthorn hedges steeped in dew,
And quiet village spires.

Like him of old who dwelt beneath
The tents of patriarchal story,
Who passed without the touch of death,
Without dim eye or failing breath,
At once into God's glory—

The Patriarch of one simple spot,
The sire of sons and daughters lowly,
And this the record of his lot,
"He walked with God and he was not,"
For the Lord took him wholly.

Like a child's voice in sacred song
That trembling rises higher and higher,
Till, lost at last, it peals along,
Swelling the anthem sweet and strong
Of great cathedral choir :—

So year by year, and day by day,
In pastoral care and household duty—
He walked with God—nor knew decay,
But faded gently, rapt away,
Into His glorious beauty.

There's many a household fair to see,
By woodland nook or running river,
Where children climb the parent's knee—
Oh, that those homes like his might be,
Filled with God's presence ever!

Oh, that our thoughts so heavenly were,
Our hearts to Christ so fully given,
That all our loves, and toils, and care,
Might only lead us nearer there,
Where He is set in heaven.

For Ever.

HEY came, they went ; of pleasures passed away.
 How often this is all that we can say ;
 They came, like dew-drops in the morning hour,
 They went, like dew-drops 'neath the noontide's power ;
 Came like the cistus with its purple eye,
 Went like the cistus, blooming but to die ;
 Unheeded in their flight they glided past,
 We sighed not, for we knew not 'twas the last !

There's no last time in heaven ! the angels pour
 A still new song, though chanted evermore,
 There's no night following on their daylight hours,
 No fading time for amaranthine flowers ;
 No change, no death, no harp that lies unstrung,
 No vacant place those hallowed hills among !

Buds and Blossoms.

HOUGHT see we here as yet in full perfection.
 Nought reaching yet unto its true ideal ;
 Lost to our careless sight is that connection
 Which knitted once the perfect to the real.

Each form of loveliness, each fair creation
 Hath yet a type more true and brighter far,
 And we must trace in all the dim relation,
 And what they might be, learn from what they are.

Thus every character, whate'er its sweetness,
 Is but a fruit all blighted and unripe,
 Still ever striving towards its own completeness
 Still ever yearning towards its highest type.

And only as we know and love them duly,
 As buds and promise of a fairer growth,
 Shall we learn how to weigh and prize them truly,
 And trace the true unto the highest truth.

Though lost and fallen is our perfect being,
 Its beauty 'mid its ruins we may see,
 And strive we still, the far completeness seeing,
 To reach once more the highest we can be.

And strive we, following in our love and duty
 Him who doth noblest, truest, purest shine,
 Who raised our human to its highest beauty,
 By blending with it His own bright divine.

The Suppliant.

ALL night the lonely suppliant prayed,
 All night his earnest crying made,
 Till standing by his side at morn,
 The tempter said, in bitter scorn,
 "O peace: what profit do you gain,
 From empty words and babblings vain?
 'Come, Lord—O come!' you cry alway,
 You pour your heart out night and day;
 Yet still no murmur of reply—
 No voice that answers, 'Here am I.'"

Then sank that stricken heart in dust,
 That word had withered all its trust;
 No strength retained it now to pray,
 While faith and hope had fled away;
 And ill that mourner now had fared,
 Thus by the tempter's art ensnared,

But that at length beside his bed
His sorrowing angel stood, and said—
“Doth it repent thee of thy love,
That never now is heard above
Thy prayer; that never any more
It knocks at heaven’s gate as before?”

“I am cast out—I find no place,
No hearing at the throne of grace;
‘Come, Lord—O come!’ I cry all day,
I pour my heart out night and day,
Yet never until now have won
The answer—‘Here am I, my son.’”

“Oh, dull of heart—enclosed doth lie
In each ‘Come, Lord!’ a ‘Here am I,’
Thy love, thy longing, are not thine—
Reflections of a love divine!
Thy very prayer to thee was given,
Itself a messenger from heaven.”

Strive, Wait, and Pray.

STRIVE; yet I do not promise
 The prize you dream of to-day
 Will not fade when you think to grasp it,
 And melt in your hand away;
 But another and holier treasure,
 You would not perchance disdain,
 Will come when your toil is over,
 And pay you for all your pain.

Wait; yet I do not tell you
 The hour you long for now,
 Will not come with its radiance vanished,
 And a shadow upon its brow;
 Yet, far through the misty future,
 With a crown of starry light,
 An hour of joy you know not,
 Is winging her silent flight.

Pray; though the gift you ask for
 May never comfort your fears,
 May never repay your pleading,
 Yet pray, and with hopeful tears;
 An answer, not that you long for,
 But diviner, will come one day;
 Your eyes are too dim to see it,
 Yet strive, and wait, and pray.

"Thou maintainest my Lot."

SOURCE of my life's refreshing springs,
 Whose presence in my heart sustains me,
 Thy love appoints me pleasant things,
 Thy mercy orders all that pains me.
 If loving hearts were never lonely,
 If all they wished might always be,
 Accepting what they look for only,
 They might be glad,—but not in Thee.

Well may Thy own beloved, who see
 In all their lot their Father's pleasure,
 Bear loss of all they love save Thee,
 Their living, everlasting treasure.

Well may Thy happy children cease
 From restless wishes, prone to sin,
 And, in Thine own exceeding peace,
 Yield to Thy daily discipline.

We need as much the cross we bear,
 As air we breathe, as light we see!
 It draws us to Thy side in prayer,
 It binds us to our strength in Thee.

“Lord, and what shall this man do?”

LORD, and what shall this man do?
 Ask'st thou, Christian, for thy friend?
 If his love for Christ be true,
 Christ hath told thee of his end:
 This is he whom God approves.
 This is he whom Jesus loves.

Ask not of him more than this,
 Leave it in his Saviour's breast,
 Whether early called to bliss,
 He in youth shall find his rest,
 Or armèd in his station wait
 Till his Lord be at the gate:

Whether in his lonely course
 (Lonely, not forlorn) he stay,
 Or with Love's supporting force
 Cheat the toil and cheer the way:
 Leave it all in His high hand,
 Who doth hearts as streams command.

Gales from heaven, if so He will,
Sweeter melodies can wake
On the lonely mountain rill,
Than the meeting waters make.
Who hath the Father and the Son,
May be left, but not alone.

Sick or healthful, slave or free,
Wealthy, or despised and poor—
What is that to him or thee,
So his love to Christ endure?
When the shore is won at last,
Who will count the billows past?

Only, since our souls will shrink
At the touch of natural grief,
When our earthly loved ones sink,
Lend us, Lord, Thy sure relief;
Patient hearts their pain to see,
And Thy grace to follow Thee.

Suspicion.

TAKE them, O death! and bear away
 Whatever thou canst call thine own!
 Thine image, stamp't upon this clay,
 Doth give thee that, but that alone!

Take them, O grave! and let them lie
 Folded upon thy narrow shelves,
 As garments by the soul laid by,
 And precious only to ourselves!

Take them, O great Eternity!
 Our little life is but a gust,
 That bends the branches of thy tree,
 And trails its blossoms in the dust!

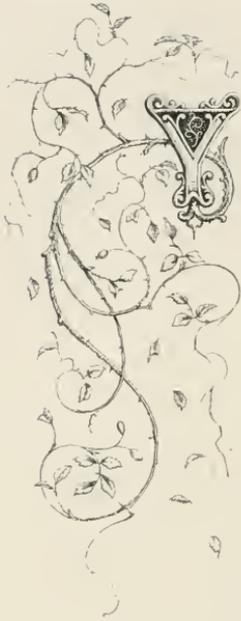

"It shall be returned to thee again."

Thy love
 Shall chant itself its own beatitudes,
 After its own life working. A child-kiss,
 Set on thy sighing lips, shall make thee glad;
 A poor man, served by thee, shall make thee rich;
 A sick man, helped by thee, shall make thee strong;
 Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense
 Of service which thou renderest.

Mortality.

"And we shall be changed."

E dainty mosses, lichens grey,
 Pressed each to each in tender fold,
 And peacefully thus day by day,
 Returning to your mould ;—

Brown leaves that with ærial grace
 Slip from your branch like birds a-wing,
 Each leaving in the appointed place
 Its bud of future spring ;—

If we, God's conscious creatures, knew
 But half your faith in our decay,
 We should not tremble as we do
 When summoned clay to clay.

But with an equal patience sweet,
 We should put off this mortal gear,
 In whatsoe'er new form is meet.
 Content to re-appear.

Knowing each germ of life He gives
 Must have in Him its source and rise,
 Being that of His being lives
 May change, but never dies.

Ye dead leaves, dropping soft and slow,
 Ye mosses green and lichens fair,
 Go to your graves as I will go,
 For God is also there.

“My times are in Thy hands.”

ATHER, I know that all my life,
Is portioned out for me,
And the changes that are sure to come
I do not fear to see ;
But I ask Thee for a patient mind,
Intent on pleasing Thee.

I ask Thee for a thoughtful love,
Through constant watching wise,
To meet the glad with joyful smiles,
And wipe the weeping eyes ;
And a heart at leisure from itself,
To soothe and sympathize.

I would not have the restless will
That hurries to and fro,
Seeking for some great thing to do,
Or secret thing to know ;
I would be treated as a child,
And guided where I go.

Wherever in the world I am,
In whatso'er estate,
I have a fellowship with hearts.
To keep and cultivate ;
And a work of lowly love to do
For the Lord on whom I wait.

So I ask Thee for the daily strength,
To none that ask denied,
And a mind to blend with outward life,
While keeping at Thy side !
Content to fill a little space,
If Thou be glorified.

And if some things I do not ask,
In my cup of blessing be,
I would have my spirit filled the more
With grateful love to Thee—
More careful—than to serve Thee much
To please Thee perfectly.

There are briars besetting every path,
That call for patient care ;
There is a cross in every lot,
And an earnest need for prayer ;
But the lowly heart that leans on Thee,
Is happy anywhere.

In a service which Thy will appoints,
There are no bonds for me ;
For my inmost heart is taught "the truth,"
That makes Thy children "free."
And a life of self-renouncing love
Is a life of liberty.

Milton on his Blindness.

AM old and blind ;
Men point at me as smitten by God's frown,
Afflicted and deserted by mankind ;
Yet I am not cast down.

I am weak, yet strong ;
I murmur not that I no longer see—
Poor, old, and helpless, I the more belong,
Father, supreme ! to Thee.

O merciful One !
When men are farthest, then Thou art most near ;
When friends pass by, my weakness shun ;
Thy chariot I hear.

Thy glorious face
Is leaning towards me, and its holy light
Shines in upon my lonely dwelling-place,
And there is no more night.

On my bended knee,
I recognize Thy purpose clearly shown ;
My vision Thou hast dimmed that I may see Thyself—Thyself alone.

I have nought to fear ;
This darkness is but the shadow of Thy wing :
Beneath it I am almost sacred, here
Can come no evil thing.

Oh! I seem to stand,
Trembling where foot of mortal ne'er hath been,
Wrapped in the radiance of Thy sinless land,
Which eye hath never seen.

Visions come and go ;
Shapes of resplendent beauty round me throng ;
From angel lips I seem to hear the flow
Of soft and holy song.

It is nothing now,
When heaven is opening on my sightless eyes,
When airs from paradise refresh the brow,
That earth in darkness lies.

In a pure clime
My being fills with rapture—waves of thought
Roll in upon my spirit—strains sublime
Break over me unsought.

Give me now my lyre !
I feel the stirrings of a gift divine ;
Within my bosom glows unearthly fire,
Lit by no skill of mine.

Trust.

COMMIT thou all thy griefs
And ways into His hands,
To His sure truth and tender care,
Who earth and heaven commands.

Who points the clouds their course,
Whom winds and seas obey :
He shall direct thy wandering feet,
He shall prepare thy way.

Put thou thy trust in God,
In duty's path go on ;
Fix on His word thy steadfast eye,
So shall thy work be done.

No profit canst thou gain
By self-consuming care ;
To Him commend thy cause, His ear
Attends the softest prayer.

Give to the winds Thy fears ;
Hope and be undismayed ;
God hears thy sighs and counts thy tears ;
God shall lift up thy head.

Through waves, and clouds, and storms,
He gently clears thy way :
Wait thou His time—thy darkest night
Shall end in brightest day.

A Valediction.

GOD be with thee, my beloved, God be with thee !
 Else alone thou goest forth,
 Thy face unto the north—
 Moor and pleasance, all around thee and beneath thee
 Looking equal in one snow !
 While I, who try to reach thee,
 Vainly follow, vainly follow,
 With the farewell and the hollo,
 And cannot reach Thee so.
 Alas ! I can but teach thee—
 God be with thee, my beloved,—God be with thee !

Can I teach thee, my beloved,—can I teach thee ?
 If I said go left or right,
 The counsel would be light,—
 The wisdom poor of all that could enrich thee,
 My right would show like left ;
 My raising would depress thee,—
 My choice of light would blind thee,—
 Of way would lead behind thee,—
 Of end would leave bereft.
 Alas ! I can but bless thee—
 May God teach thee, my beloved,—may God teach thee !

Can I bless thee, my beloved, can I bless thee ?
 What blessing word can I
 From my own tears keep dry ?
 What flowers grow in my field wherewith to dress thee ?
 My good reverts to ill ;
 My calmnesses would move thee,—
 My softnesses would prick thee—
 My bindings up would break thee—
 My crownings curse and kill.
 Alas ! I can but love Thee—
 May God bless thee, my beloved,—may God bless thee !

Can I love thee, my beloved—can I love thee?
 And is this like love, to stand
 With no help in my hand,
 When strong as death I fain would watch above thee?
 My love-kiss can deny
 No tear that falls beneath it :
 My oath of love can swear thee
 From no ill that comes near thee.—
 And thou diest while I breathe it,
 And I, I can but die !
 May God love thee, my beloved,—may God love thee.

Abide with me.

ABIDE with me ; fast falls the eventide ;
 The darkness thickens ; Lord with me abide ;
 When other helpers fail, and comforts flee,
 Help of the helpless, O abide with me ;

Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day ;
 Earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away ;
 Change and decay in all around I see ;
 O Thou who changest not, abide with me.

Not a brief glance I beg, a passing word,
But as Thou dwell'st with Thy disciples, Lord,—
Familiar, condescending, patient, free,
Come not to sojourn, but abide with me.

Come not in terrors, as the King of kings,
But kind and good, with healing on thy wings ;
Tears for all woes. a heart for every plea ;
Come, Friend of sinners, thus abide with me.

I need Thy presence every passing hour,—
What but Thy grace can foil the tempter's power ?
Who like Thyself my guide and stay can be ?
Through cloud and sunshine, O abide with me.

I fear no foe, with Thee at hand to bless :
Ills have no weight, and tears no bitterness :
Where is death's sting ? where, grave, thy victory ?
I triumph still if Thou abide with me.

Hold Thou Thy cross before my closing eyes,
Shine through the gloom, and point me to the skies ;
Heaven's morning breaks, and earth's vain shadows flee ;
In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me.

To a Waterfowl.

HITHER, midst falling dew,
While glow the heavens with the last steps of day,
Far through their rosy depths dost thou pursue
Thy solitary way?

Vainly the fowler's eye
Might mark thy distant flight to do thee wrong,
As, darkly painted on the crimson sky,
Thy figure floats along.

Seek'st thou the plashy brink
Of weedy lake, or marge of river wide,
Or where the rocking billows rise or sink
On the chafed ocean side?

There is a power whose care
Teaches thy way along that pathless coast,—
The desert and the illimitable air,—
Lone wandering, but not lost.

All day thy wings have fanned,
At that far height, the cold, thin atmosphere,
Yet stoop not, weary, to the welcome land,
Though the dark night is near.

And soon that toil shall end ;
 Soon shalt thou find a summer home, and rest,
 And scream among thy fellows ; reeds shall bend
 Soon o'er thy sheltered nest.

Thou'rt gone, the abyss of heaven
 Hath swallowed up thy form ; yet on my heart
 Deeply hath sunk the lesson thou hast given,
 And shall not soon depart.

He who, from zone to zone,
 Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight,
 In the long way that I must tread alone,
 Will guide my steps aright.

Omnipresence.

NATHER and Friend ! Thy light, thy love
 Beaming through all Thy works we see ;
 Thy glory gilds the heavens above,
 And all the earth is full of Thee.

Thy voice we hear, Thy presence feel,
 Whilst Thou, too pure for mortal sight,
 Involved in clouds—invisible,
 Reignest the Lord of life and light.

We know not in what hallowed part
 Of the wide heavens Thy throne may be,
 But this we know, that where Thou art,
 Strength, wisdom, goodness, dwell with Thee.

Thy children shall not faint or fear,
 Sustained by this delightful thought,
 Since Thou their God art everywhere,
 They cannot be where Thou art not.

The Alpine Gentian.

SHE, 'neath ice-mountains vast,
Long had lain sleeping,
When she looked forth at last
Timidly peeping.

Trembling she gazed around,—
All round her slept,
O'er the dead icy ground
Cold shadows crept.

Wide fields of silent snow,
Still frozen seas ;
What could her young life do
Mid such as these ?

Not a voice came to her,
Not a warm breath ;
What hope lay there for her,
Living midst death ?

Mournfully pondering,
Gazed she on high ;
White clouds were wandering
Through the blue sky.

There smiled the kindly sun,
Gentle beams kissed her ;
On her the mild moon shone,
Like a saint sister.

There, twinkling, many a star
Danced in sweet mirth ;
The warm heavens seemed nearer far
Than the cold earth.

So she gazed steadfastly
Loving on high,
Till she grew heavenly
Blue as the sky.

And the cold icicles
Near her which grew,
Thawed in her skyeey bells,
Fed her with dew :

And the tired traveller
Gazing abroad,
Fixing his eyes on her
Thinketh of God,—

Thinks how, mid life's cold snow,
Hearts to God given
Breathe out where'er they go
Summer and heaven.

The Golden Rule.

"All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them."—MATT. vii. 12.

H! not alone the murderous blade
 This golden rule would sheathe,
 Not only rival states be made
 The words of peace to breathe.
 But were this sacred maxim ours,
 How oft life's thorns were changed to flowers,
 How many a cloud that round us lowers,
 Would half its darkness lose.
 Love o'er our chequered, changeful way,
 Would hold its sweet yet potent sway,
 Mighty as noontide's powerful ray,
 Yet soft as evening dews.

Not only near the glittering sword
 Doth war's fierce spirit dwell,
 The discord of the soul, a word,
 A glance, can speak too well.
 A thousand trifles, light as air
 To him who can life's tempest dare,
 May yet the softer spirit tear
 With wounds not deep, but keen.
 And who can thus bid others smart,
 Has war as surely in his heart
 As he who wings the poisoned dart
 In battle's dreadful scene.

But thoughtless words may bear a sting
 Where malice hath no place,
 May wake to pain some secret string
 Beyond thy power to trace.
 When quivering lips, and flushing cheek,
 The spirit's agony bespeak,
 Then, though thou deem thy brother weak,
 Yet soothe his soul to peace.
 But if the fierce and kindling eye,
 Proclaim a storm of passion nigh,
 Oh! then, with tenfold fervour try
 To bid the tumult cease.

For if those angry passions wake
 Within another's breast,
 Thou'lt surely in his guilt partake,
 Its weight on thee will rest.
 And though the crime be great in him
 To let the tempest rise within,
 Yet is not thine the greater sin,
 In the just view of Heaven?
 Whose load in many an after day,
 Upon thy burdened heart may weigh,
 And chase thy spirit's calm away,
 When he has been forgiven.

Perchance thy well-aimed satire draws
 A smile from those around,
 But in a heartless throng's applause
 Is solid pleasure found?
 Can it delight thee? surely, no;
 Its brightest smiles thou would'st forego,
 The fame its honours can bestow,
 Rather than wound another.
 Couldst thou its worthless praise obtain,
 A listening world's approval gain,
 Could this atone to thee for pain
 Inflicted on a brother?

O thou, whose every nerve vibrates
 On feeling's golden chain!
 Whose chords each passing breeze awakes
 To pleasure or to pain.
 A living harp, whose trembling strings
 Now rapture thrills, now anguish wrings,
 While every whispering zephyr brings
 Some breath to swell the tone;
 Remember, feelings as refined
 May round thy brother's heart be twined,
 And gently guard his peace of mind,
 As if it were thine own.

Thus make this sacred maxim thine,
 While life is spared to thee,
 The lip that gave it was divine—
 A lip of purity.
 And He whose blameless life supplied
 Of holy love a boundless tide,
 Thy yielded heart would sweetly guide,
 Its loveliness to see.
 And where its spirit felt aright,
 'Twould shed around a hallowed light,
 And make this weary world as bright
 As aught 'neath heaven can be.

Strength, Love, and Rest.

TILL evermore for some great strength we pray,
 Seeking and yearning for it day by day ;
 A strength whereon undoubting we may lean.
 And find that rest we have but dimly seen.

To lean our heart upon another heart,
 In love that neither life nor death can part ;
 So seek we still to end our life-long quest,
 For only in true love we find true rest.

That love which makes another's life our own,
 And tunes our jarring natures to one tone ;
 The filling up of all we sought so long ;
 For leaning on itself no strength is strong.

No love is perfect here, it leads us on
 To love's great source—the uncreated One ;
 Most true is that through which we learn to see
 Most of Thy strength, and most, O Lord, of Thee.

Which sees, in all its happiness and bliss,
 The promise of a joy more great than this ;
 Which seeks its perfectness for evermore,
 In the love-light that gilds the happy shore.

O strength, O love and rest, the light that steals
 From the pure sunshine of those golden fields !
 Faint rays we catch e'en now upon our way,
 Lighting our footsteps to the land of day.

Thou art the light, the sunshine is from Thee ;
 And in Thy heart is strength and purity ;
 There lean our weary hearts, there ends our quest,
 For there is perfect love and perfect rest.

Speak Gently,

SPEAK gently ! it is better far
 To rule by love than fear ;
 Speak gently ; let not harsh words mar
 The good we might do here !

Speak gently ! love doth whisper low
 The vows that true hearts bind ;
 And gently friendship's accents flow ;
 Affection's voice is kind !

Speak gently to the little child,
 Its love be sure to gain ;
 Teach it in accents soft and mild ;
 It may not long remain !

Speak gently to the young ; for they
 Will have enough to bear ;
 Pass through this world as best they may
 'Tis full of anxious care !

Speak gently to the aged one ;
 Grieve not the careworn heart ;
 The sands of life are nearly run,
 Let such in peace depart.

Speak gently, kindly to the poor,
 Let no harsh tone be heard ;
 They have enough they must endure,
 Without an unkind word.

Speak gently to the erring ! know
 They may have toiled in vain ;
 Perchance unkindness made them so ;
 Oh ! win them back again.

Speak gently ! He who gave His life
 To bend man's stubborn will,
 When elements were in fierce strife,
 Said to them, "Peace, be still."

Speak gently ! 'tis a little thing
 Dropped in the heart's deep well ;
 The good, the joy, that it may bring,
 Eternity shall tell !

Faith, Hope, and Charity.

FAITH, Hope, and Charity,—these three,
 Yet is the greatest—Charity ;
 Father of lights ! these gifts impart
 To mine and every human heart.

Faith, that in prayer can never fail ;
 Hope, that o'er doubting must prevail ;
 And Charity, whose name above
 Is God's own name,—for God is love.

The morning star is lost in light ;
 Faith vanishes at perfect sight ;
 The rainbow passes with the storm,
 And hope with sorrow's fading form.

But Charity, serene, sublime,
 Unlimited by death or time,
 Like the blue sky's all-bounding space,
 Holds heaven and earth in one embrace.

Judge not.

JUDGE not ; the workings of his brain
 And of his heart thou canst not see ;
 What looks a stain, thy dim eyes a stain,
 In God's pure light may only be
 A scar, brought from some well-won field,
 Where thou would'st only faint and yield.

The look, the air, that frets thy sight,
 May be a token that below
 The soul has closed in deadly fight
 With some infernal fiery foe,
 Whose glance would scorch thy smiling grace,
 And cast the shuddering on thy face.

The fall thou darest to despise—
 May be the slackened angel's hand
 Has suffered it, that he may rise
 And take a firmer surer stand ;
 Or, trusting less to earthly things,
 May henceforth learn to use his wings.

And judge none lost ; but wait and see,
 With hopeful pity, not disdain :
 The depth of the abyss may be
 The measure of the height of pain,
 And love and glory, that may raise
 This soul to God in after days.

Think gently of the Erring.

THINK gently of the erring ;
 Ye know not of the power
 With which the dark temptation came,
 In some unguarded hour,
 Ye may not know how earnestly
 They struggled, or how well,
 Until the hour of weakness came,
 And sadly thus they fell.

Think gently of the erring ;
 Oh ! do not thou forget,
 However darkly stained by sin,
 He is thy brother yet ;
 Heir of the self-same heritage,
 Child of the self-same God,
 He has but stumbled in the path
 Thou hast in weakness trod.

Speak gently to the erring ;
 For is it not enough
 That innocence and peace have gone,
 Without thy censure rough ?
 It sure must be a weary lot,
 That sin-stained heart to bear,
 And those who share a happier fate
 Their chidings well may spare.

Speak gently to the erring ;
 Thou yet may'st lead them back
 With holy words and tones of love,
 From misery's thorny track ;
 Forget not thou hast often sinned,
 And sinful yet must be,
 Deal gently with the erring, then,
 As God has dealt with thee.

Life's Lesson.

UNDER the bowering honeysuckle,
 By purple bells of shaking heather,
 And brambly spines that closely buckle
 Thick-leaved chains together,
 As the sunshine plays,
 Where the lily strays
 On its stream,
 Netting a gaudy maze
 Where the shingles gleam,
 Flitting in cressy nook
 Which the forget-me-not,
 King-cup, and hare-dell dot.
 How the glad little brook,
 Sparkling along,
 Singeth in joyous measure,
 Toned by its own sweet pleasure,
 Music's song !

Under the night's gloom, black and
 starless,
 When the old forest-beeches near its Darkling flood, like trees are far less
 Than like shadowy spirits ;
 Though the sunlight's gone
 That so sweetly shone,
 And the flowers
 Died, as the night came on,
 With the golden hours ;
 Though the blossom and beam,
 Though the love and the light
 From the glamour of night,
 Have deserted its stream,
 How the lone rill,
 Chilled and forsaken—listen !
 Makes, though no starlight glisten.
 Music still !

The Streamlet's Song.

LITTLE brook went singing,
All through the summer hours,
Ever a low soft murmur
It whispered to the flowers.
The bulrush and the sedgegrass
Its leafy border made,
And the low bending willow
Gave cool and quiet shade.

The young birds loved its shelter,
And listened to its song,
They tried to learn its cadence,
As it carolled it along.
What was the brooklet singing,
What did its murmur say,
Its dreamy tones of music
Through all the summer-day ?

A child came to its margin,
It sang its song to her :
"Fair child," it said, "I'm joyous
As spring-time's flowerets are.
For life is glad and sunny,
And who so gay as I ?
For flowerets kiss me as I pass
Beneath the glowing sky."

A maiden watched the brooklet,
To her its low voice said,
"Calm my life has always been
In this fair meadow led ;
If clouds have dimmed the brightness,
They quickly passed away,
And when I've reached the river,
I shall be always gay."

Long years had changed the maiden,
When there she stood again ;
Youth's glee had left her spirit,
Her eyes were dim with pain.
Was it the song her childhood,
Or that her girlhood knew,
That reached her world-worn spirit,
Watching its waters blue ?

She heard a sadder murmur
Than she had heard before ;
"Oh never gleams the sunlight
In brightness as of yore !
I'm weary of the meadow,
I'm weary of my tune.
The nights are dark and cheerless,
The winter cometh soon."

An aged woman watched it
 With tear-dimmed anxious eye,
 And bent her ear to listen
 To the streamlet's symphony.
 But oh, it sang that evening
 A changed, a sadder sound ;
 " I go my weary journey,
 To that great ocean bound.

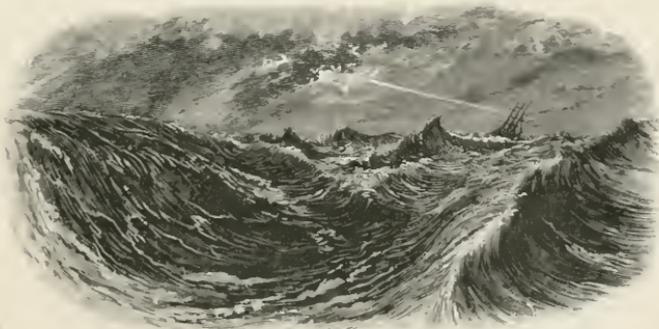

" My life is sad and restless,
 I water many a grave,
 I fear the heaving ocean,
 I fear the mighty wave."—
 But still the child and maiden
 And weary woman's heart,
 Read not aright its lesson,
 Nor what its music taught.

Their own hearts beat too loudly
 The stream's low tones to hear,
 Their spirits' voices heard they
 And not its music clear.
 I'll tell you what it murmured,
 What were the words it sung,
 As blue-bells kissed its waters,
 And sedgegrass o'er it hung.

It said, " My life is humble,
 But very tranquil too,
 I gaze for ever upwards
 On that deep sky of blue.
 After the cloudlets gather,
 The sunshine seems more bright ;
 I know the morning cometh,
 Though dark may be the night.

" Sometimes the flowerets wither,
 I make them fresh again ;
 I bathe the thirsty willows
 When falls no gentle rain.
 The work my Maker gives me
 It makes me glad to do ;
 His smile is in the sunshine,
 His blessing in the dew.

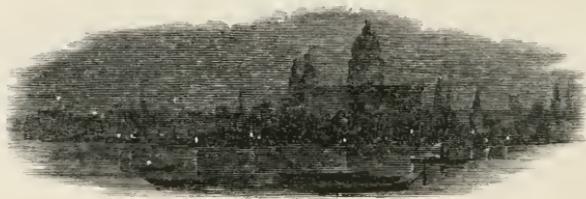

" The ocean I am nearing
 Is beautiful and fair :
 He leads me through the meadow,
 He'll make me happy there.
 And anywhere and everywhere,
 So that I do His will,
 And do my life's work bravely,
 I shall be happy still."

Hymn of the City.

NOT in the solitude
 Alone may man commune with Heaven, or see
 Only in savage wood
 And sunny vale, the present Deity ;
 Or only hear His voice
 Where the winds whisper and the waves rejoice.
 Even here I do behold
 Thy steps, Almighty, here amidst the crowd,
 Through the vast city rolled,
 With everlasting murmur deep and loud—
 Choking the ways that wind
 'Mongst the proud piles, the work of human kind.
 Thy golden sunshine comes
 From the round heaven, and on their dwelling lies,
 And lights their inner homes ;
 For them Thou fill'st with air the unbounded skies,
 And givest them the stores
 Of ocean, and the harvest of its shores.
 Thy spirit is around,
 Quickening the restless mass that sweeps along ;
 And this eternal sound—
 Voices and footfalls of the numberless throng,
 Like the resounding sea,
 Or like the rainy tempest, speaks of Thee.
 And when the hours of rest
 Come, like a calm upon the mid-sea brine,
 Hushing its billowy breast—
 The quiet of that moment too is Thine.
 It breathes of Him who keeps
 The vast and helpless city while it sleeps.

The Brooklet.

S

WEET brooklet, ever gliding,
Now high the mountain riding,
The low vale now dividing,
Whither away?"

"With pilgrim course I flow ;
Or in summer's searching glow,
Or in moonless waste of snow,
Nor stop, nor stay :

"For oh, by high behest,
To a home of glorious rest,
In my parent ocean's breast,
I haste away."

"Many a dark morass,
Many a craggy mass,
Thy feeble force must pass,
Yet, yet, delay !"

"Though the marsh be dire and deep,
Though the crag be stern and steep,
On, on, my course must keep,
I may not stay.

"For oh ! be it cast or west,
To a home of glorious rest,
In the bright sea's boundless breast,
I haste away."

“The warbling bowers beside thee,
The laughing flowers that hide thee,
With soft accord they chide thee,
Sweet brooklet, stay !”

“I taste of the fragrant flowers,
I respond to the warbling bowers,
Sweetly they charm the hours
On my winding way.

“But ceaseless still in quest
Of that eternal rest
In my parent’s boundless breast.
I haste away !”

“Knowest thou the drear abyss?
Is it a scene of bliss?
Oh ! rather cling to this ;
Sweet brooklet, stay !”

“Oh ! who shall fitly tell
What wonders there may dwell ;
That world of mystery well
Might strike dismay !

“But I know ’tis my parent’s breast :
There held, I must needs be blest ;
And with joy to my promised rest
I haste away !”

A Morning Prayer.

HE golden morn flames up the eastern sky,
And what dark night had hid from every eye
All-piercing day-light summons clear to view :
And all the forests, vale, or plain, or hill,
That slept in mist enshrouded, dark and still,
In, gladsome light are glittering now anew.

Shine in my heart and bring me joy and light,
Sun of my darkened soul, dispel its night,
And shed in it the truthful day abroad ;
And all the many gloomy folds lay bare
Within this heart that fain would learn to wear
The pure and glorious likeness of its Lord.

Glad with Thy light, and glowing with Thy love,
So let me ever think, and speak, and move,
As fits a soul new-touched with life from heaven,
That seeks but so to order all her course,
As most to show the glory of that source
By whom alone her strength, her life are given.

I ask not, take away this weight of care ;
No, for that love I pray that all can bear,
And for the faith that whatsoe'er befall
Must needs be good, and for my profit prove,
Since from my Father's heart, most rich in love,
And from His bounteous hands it cometh all.

I ask not that my course be calm and still ;
 No, here too, Lord, be done Thy holy will ;
 I ask but for a quiet, child-like heart ;
 Though thronging cares and restless toil be mine,
 Yet may my heart remain for ever Thine,
 Draw it from earth, and fix it where Thou art.

I ask Thee not to finish soon the strife,
 The toil, the trouble of this earthly life :
 No, be my peace amid its grief and pain :
 I pray not grant me now Thy realm on high :
 No, ere I die let me to evil die,
 And through Thy cross my sins be wholly slain.

True Morning Sun of all my life, I pray
 That not in vain Thou shine on me to day,
 Be Thou my light when all around is gloom ;
 Thy brightness, hope, and courage on me shed,
 That I may joy to see, when life is fled,
 The setting sun that brings the pilgrim home.

---

Heavenward.

HEAVENWARD doth our journey tend,
 We are strangers here on earth,
 Through the wilderness we wend
 Towards the Canaan of our birth.
 Here we roam a pilgrim band,
 Yonder is our native land.

Heavenward stretch, my soul, thy wings,
 Heavenly nature canst thou claim,
 There is nought of earthly things
 Worthy to be all thine aim ;
 Every soul that God inspires,
 Back to Him, its source, aspires.

Heavenward! doth His Spirit cry,
When I hear Him in His word
Showing thus the rest on high,
Where I shall be with my Lord.
When His word fills all my thought,
Oft to heaven my soul is caught.

Heavenward ever would I haste,
When Thy table, Lord, is spread ;
Heavenly strength on earth I taste,
Feeding on the Living Bread ;
Such is e'en on earth our fare
Who Thy marriage feast shall share.

Heavenward! faith discerns the prize,
That is waiting us afar,
And my heart would swiftly rise,
High o'er sun and moon and star,
To that light behind the veil
Where all earthly splendours pale.

Heavenward death shall lead at last,
To the home where I would be,
All my sorrows overpast,
I shall triumph there with Thee,
Jesus, who hast gone before,
That we too might heavenward soar.

Heavenward! heavenward! only this
Is my watchword on the earth ;
For the love of heavenly bliss
Counting all things little worth.
Heavenward all my being tends
Till in heaven my journey ends.

The Second Day.

"And God said, let there be a firmament."

HIS world I deem
But a beautiful dream
Of shadows that are not what they seem ;
Where visions arise,
Giving dim surmise
Of the sights that shall meet our waking eyes.

Arm of the Lord !
Creating Word,
Whose glory the silent skies record,
Where stands Thy name
In scrolls of flame,
On the firmament's high-shadowing frame !

I gaze o'erhead,
Where Thy hand hath spread
For the waters of heaven, their crystal bed ;
And stored the dew
In its depths of blue,
Which the fires of the sun come tempered through.

Soft they shine
Through that pure shrine,
As beneath the veil of Thy flesh divine
Beams forth the light,
That were else too bright
For the feebleness of a sinner's sight.

And such I deem
This world will seem
When we waken from life's uncertain dream,
And burst the shell
Where our spirits dwell
In this wondrous anti-natal cell.

I gaze aloof
At the tissued roof
Where time and space are the warp and woof
Which the King of kings
As a curtain flings
O'er the dreadfulness of eternal things ;

As a tapestried tent,
To shade us meant,
From the bare everlasting firmament ;
Where the blaze of the skies
Comes soft to our eyes
Through a veil of mystical imageries.

But could I see
As in truth they be,
The glories of heaven that encompass me,
I should lightly hold
The tissued fold
Of this marvellous curtain of blue-and-gold.

And soon the whole,
As a parchèd scroll,
Shall to my amazed sight uproll ;
And without a screen
At one burst be seen,
The presence in which I have ever been.

Oh! who shall bear
 The blinding glare
 Of the majesty that shall meet us there?
 What eye can gaze
 On the unveiled blaze
 On the light-gilded throne of the Ancient of Days?

Christ us aid!
 Himself be our shade,
 That in that dread day we be not dismayed.

---

Resignation.

ATHER! whate'er of earthly bliss
 Thy sovereign will denies,
 Accepted at Thy throne of grace,
 Let this petition rise:

"Give me a calm, a thankful heart,
 From every murmur free;
 The blessings of Thy grace impart,
 And make me live to Thee.

"Let the sweet hope that Thou art mine,
 My life and death attend;
 Thy presence through my journey shine,
 And crown my journey's end!"

The Bright and Morning Star.

HE last sand from time's hourglass
Shall soon disappear,
And like vapour shall vanish
This old rolling sphere.

On the floor like the chaff-stream
In the dark wintry day,
From the fan of destruction
Shall suns drift away.

And the meteors of glory,
Which wilder the wise,
Only gleam till we open
In true worlds our eyes.

But aloft, in God's heaven,
There blazeth a star,
And I live while I'm watching
Its light from afar.

From its lustre immortal
My soul caught the spark,
Which shall beam on undy-
ing
When sunshine is dark.

So transforming its radiance,
Its strength so benign,
Dull clay burns a ruby,
And man grows divine.

To the zenith ascended,
From Joseph's dark tomb,
Star of Jesse! so rivet
My gaze through the gloom.

That Thy beauty imbibing,
My dross may refine,
Till in splendour reflected
I burn and I shine.

The Building of the House.

HAVE a wondrous house to build,
 A dwelling humble yet divine ;
 A lowly cottage to be filled
 With all the jewels of the mine.
 How shall I build it strong and fair,
 This noble house, this lodging rare,
 So small and modest, yet so great ?
 How shall I fill its chambers bare,
 With use, with ornament, with state ?

My God hath given the stone and clay
 'Tis I must fashion them aright ;
 'Tis I must mould them day by day,
 And make my labour my delight !
 This cot, this palace, this fair home,
 This pleasure house, this holy dome,

Must be in all proportions fit,
 That heavenly messengers may come
 To lodge with him who tenants it.

No fairy bower this house must be,
 To totter at each gale that starts,
 But of substantial masonry,
 Symmetrical in all its parts ;
 Fit in its strength to stand sublime
 For seventy years of mortal time,
 Defiant of the storm and rain,
 And well attempered to the clime,
 In every cranny, nook, and pane.

I'll build it so that if the blast
 Around it whistle loud and long,
 The tempest, when its rage has passed,
 Shall leave its rafters doubly strong.
 I'll build it so, that travellers by
 Shall view it with admiring eye,
 For its commodiousness and grace :
 Firm on the ground—straight to the sky,
 A meek, but godly dwelling place.

Thus noble in its outward form,
    Within I'll build it clean and white,
Not cheerless cold, but happy warm,
    And ever open to the light.
No tortuous passages or stair,
No chamber foul or dungeon lair,
    No gloomy attic shall there be,
But wide apartments ordered fair,
    And redolent of purity.

With three compartments furnished well,
    The house shall be a home complete ;
Wherein, should circumstance rebel,
    The humble tenant may retreat.
The first a room wherein to deal
With men for human nature's weal,
    A room where he may work or play,
And all his social life reveal
    In its pure texture day by day.

The second, for his wisdom sought,
    Where, with his chosen book or friend,
He may employ his active thought
    To virtuous and exalted end.
A chamber lofty and serene,
    With a door-window to the green
Smooth-shaven sward, and arching bowers,
Where lore or talk, or song between,
    May gild his intellectual hours.

The third an oratory dim,
    But beautiful : where he may raise,
Unheard of men, his daily hymn
    Of love and gratitude and praise.
Where he may revel in the light
Of things unseen and infinite,
    And learn how little he may be,
And yet how awful in thy sight,
    Ineffable eternity.

Such is the house that I must build,
    This is the cottage—this the dome—
And this the palace, treasure-filled
    For an immortal's earthly home.

Oh, noble work of toil and care!
 Oh, task most difficult and rare!
 Oh, simple but most arduous plan!
 To raise a dwelling-place so fair—
 The sanctuary of a man.

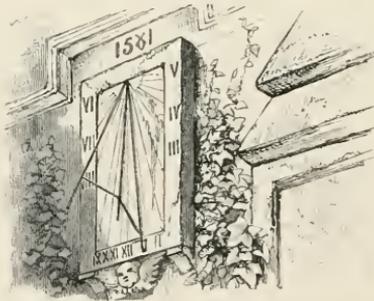

“How old art thou?”

COUNT not the days that have idly flown,
 The years that were vainly spent;
 Nor speak of the hours thou must blush to own,
 When thy spirit stands before the throne,
 To account for the talents lent.

But number the hours redeemed from sin,
 The moments employed for heaven;
 Oh! few and evil thy days have been,
 Thy life, a toilsome but worthless scene,
 For a nobler purpose given.

Will the shade go back on thy dial-plate?
 Will thy sun stand still on his way?
 Both hasten on; and thy spirit's fate
 Rests on the point of life's little date:
 Then live while 'tis called to-day.

Life's waning hours, like the Sybil's page,
 As they lessen, in value rise:
 Oh! rouse thee and live! nor deem man's age
 Stands in the length of his pilgrimage,
 But in days that are truly wise.

Thy way, not mine.

HY way, not mine, O Lord.
 However dark it be!
 Lead me by Thine own hand.
 Choose out the path for me.

Smooth let it be or rough,
 It will be still the best,
 Winding or straight, it leads
 Right onward to Thy rest.

I dare not choose my lot:
 I would not if I might:
 Choose Thou for me, my God,
 So shall I walk aright.

The kingdom that I seek
 Is Thine; so let the way
 That leads to it be Thine,
 Else I must surely stray.

Take Thou my cup, and it
 With joy or sorrow fill
 As best to Thee may seem;
 Choose Thou my good and ill.

Choose Thou for me my friends,
 My sickness or my health;
 Choose Thou my cares for me,
 My poverty or wealth.

Not mine, not mine the choice,
 In things or great or small;
 Be Thou my guide, my strength,
 My wisdom and my all.

Commit thy way to God.

OMMIT thy way to God,
 The weight which makes thee faint;
 Worlds are to Him no load,
 To Him breathe thy complaint.
 He who for winds and clouds
 Maketh a pathway free,
 Through wastes, or hostile crowds,
 Can make a way for thee.

Thou must in Him be blest.
 Ere bliss can be secure;
 On His work must thou rest
 If thy work shall endure.
 To anxious, prying thought,
 And weary, fretting care,
 The Highest yieldeth nought;
 He giveth all to prayer!

Father ! Thy faithful love,
 Thy mercy, wise and mild,
 Sees what will blessing prove,
 Or what will hurt Thy child.
 And what Thy wise foreseeing,
 Doth for Thy children choose,
 Thou bringest into being,
 Nor suffrest them to lose.

All means always possessing,
 Invincible in might ;
 Thy doings are all blessing,
 Thy goings are all light.
 Nothing Thy work suspending,
 No foe can make Thee pause,
 When Thou, Thine own defending,
 Dost undertake their cause.

Hope then, though woes be doubled,
 Hope and be undismayed ;
 Let not thine heart be troubled,
 Nor let it be afraid.
 This prison where thou art,
 Thy God will break it soon,
 And flood with light thy heart
 In His own blessed noon.

Up, up ! the day is breaking,
 Say to thy cares, good night !
 Thy troubles from thee shaking,
 Like dreams in day's fresh light.
 Thou wearest not the crown,
 Nor the best course canst tell ;
 God sitteth on the throne,
 And guideth all things well.

Trust Him to govern, then !
 No king can rule like Him :
 How wilt thou wonder when
 Thine eyes no more are dim ;
 To see those paths which vex thee,
 How wise they were and meet ;
 The works which now perplex thee,
 How beautiful, complete !

Faithful the love thou sharest,
 All, all is well with thee !
 The crown from hence thou bearest
 With shouts of victory.
 In thy right hand to-morrow,
 Thy God shall place the palms ;
 To Him who chased thy sorrow
 How glad will be thy psalms.

He doeth all things well.

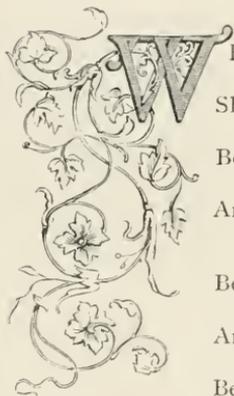

HOPED that with the brave and strong
My portioned task might lie ;
To toil amid the busy throng
With purpose pure and high :
But God has fixed another part,
And he has fixed it well ;
I said so with my breaking heart,
When first this anguish fell.

These weary hours will not be lost,
These days of misery,
These nights of darkness, temptest-tost—
Can I but turn to Thee ;
With secret labour to sustain
In patience every blow,
To gather fortitude from pain,
And holiness from woe.

If Thou shouldst bring me back to life,
More humble I should be,
More wise, more strengthened for the strife,
More apt to lean on Thee ;
Should death be standing at the gate,
Thus should I keep my vow,
But Lord ! whatever be my fate,
Oh, let me serve Thee now !

Love to God.

WE love Thee, Lord, yet not alone
Because Thy bounteous hand
Showers down its rich and ceaseless gifts
On ocean and on land :
Because Thou bidst the Sun go forth
Rejoicing in his might,
And kindle earth to glowing life
And beauty with his light.

Because Thou roll'st the orbs of light
Through trackless fields of space,
And giv'st to each low creeping flower
Its fragrance and its grace :
Because in sunshine and in storm
Alike we see Thee near ;
In summer gale and rushing wind,
Alike Thy voice we hear ;

'Tis not alone because Thy names
Of Wisdom, Power, and Love,
Are written on the earth beneath,
The glorious skies above :
For these, Thy gifts, we praise Thee, Lord ;
Yet not for these alone
The incense of Thy children's love
Arises to Thy throne.

We love Thee, Lord, because when we
Had erred and gone astray,
Thou didst recall our wandering souls
Into the heavenward way ;
When helpless, hopeless, we were lost
In sin and sorrow's night,
Thou didst send forth a guiding ray
Of Thy benignant light.

Because, when we forsook Thy ways,
Nor kept Thy holy will,
Thou wert not the avenging Judge.
But gracious Father still ;
Because we have forgot Thee, Lord.
Yet thou hast not forgot ;
Because we have forsaken Thee,
Yet Thou forsakest not :—

Because, O Lord, Thou lovedst us
With everlasting love :
Because Thy Son came down to die,
That we might live above ;
Because when we were heirs of wrath,
Thou gavest hopes of heaven :
Yes ; much we love, who much have sinned.
And much have been forgiven.

Undertake for me.

As those that watch for the day,
Through the restless night of pain,
When the first fair streaks of grey
Bring rest and ease again—
As they turn their sleepless eyes
The eastern sky to see,
Long hours before sunrise—
So waiteth my soul for Thee.

As those that watch for the day,
Through the long, long night of grief,
When the soul can only pray
That the day may bring relief,—
When the eyes, with weeping spent,
No dawn of hope can see,
But the heart keeps watch intent.—
So waiteth my soul for Thee.

As those that watch for the day,
Through that deepest night of all,
When trembling and sin have sway.
And the shades of Thy absence fall :

As they search, through clouds of fear,
That Morning Star to see,
And the Light of Life appear—
So waiteth my soul for Thee !

As those that watch for the day,
And know that the day will rise,
Through the weary hours delay,
As they pass under midnight skies,
Though the Sun of Righteousness
Only faith's eye can see,
Because Thou hast promised to bless,
Lord Jesus, I wait for Thee.

The Promised One,

From "DAVID PLAYING BEFORE SAUL."

SEE! the dull dense clouds are breaking
Slowly, slowly into light away ;
And my mental sense is waking.
Dazzled by a brighter ray
Than e'er, the east with glory streaking,
Glanced from the opening eyes of day.

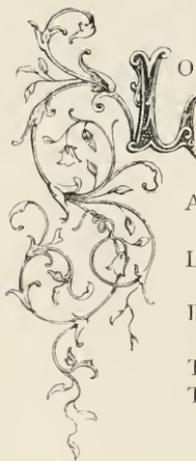

Is it come?—that glimpse of heaven
For which my soul so long hath striven,
Diving for lore obscure and high,
In the darkling depths of prophecy?
Avaunt thee, fiend! the woman's seed shall tread
On the fierce terrors of the serpent's head.

I know Him by the light He giveth ;
I know that my Redeemer liveth ;
He shall stand upon the earth,
Godlike in His mortal birth ;
In Him the sons of sorrow shall find rest.
And all the nations of the world be blest.

Yes, I know Him from afar,—
 Israel's sceptre, Jacob's star ;
 For like him on Zophim's brow,
     Him of the gifted eye,
 I shall see Him, but not now,
     Behold Him, but not nigh.

Be it so! on other eyes
 Let the promised One arise,
 While mine own are curtained deep
 In their last and soundest sleep :
 Enough for me, what hope sublime
 Can to her humble child allow ;
 Enough! anticipating time,
 She feels Him and adores Him now.

“ Lord, that I might receive my sight.”

LORD! we sit and cry to Thee
 Like the blind beside the way :
 Make our darkened souls to see
     The glory of Thy perfect day !
 Lord, rebuke our sullen night,
 And give Thyself unto our sight !

Lord! we do not ask to gaze
 On our dim and earthly sun ;
 But the light that still shall blaze
     When every star its course hath run.
 The light that gilds Thy blest abode,
 The glory of the Lamb of God.

Christmas Day.

WHAT sudden blaze of song
 Spreads o'er the expanse of heaven?
 In waves of light it thrills along,
 The angelic signal given—
 "Glory to God!" from yonder central fire
 Flows out the echoing lay beyond the starry
 quire;

Like circles widening round
 Upon a clear blue river,
 Orb after orb, the wondrous sound
 Is echoed on for ever:
 "Glory to God on high, on earth be peace,
 And love towards men of love—salvation and release."

Yet stay, before thou dare
 To join that festal throng;
 Listen and mark what gentle air
 First stirred the tide of song;
 'Tis not "the Saviour born in David's home
 To whom for power and health obedient worlds should come:—"

'Tis not, "the Christ the Lord :"
 With fixed adoring look
 The choir of angels caught the word,
 Nor yet their silence broke :
 But when they heard the sign, where Christ should be,
 In sudden light they shone and heavenly harmony.

Wrapped in His swaddling bands
 And in His manger laid,
 The hope and glory of all lands
 Is come to the world's aid ;
 No peaceful home upon His cradle smiled,
 Guests rudely went and came, where slept the royal Child.

But where thou dwellest, Lord,
 No other thought should be,
 Once duly welcomed and adored,
 How should I part with Thee?
 Bethlehem must lose Thee soon, but Thou wilt grace
 The single heart to be Thy sure abiding-place.

Thee, on the bosom laid
 Of a pure virgin mind,
 In quiet ever and in shade,
 Shepherd and sage may find ;
 They who had bowed untaught to nature's sway,
 And they who followed truth along her star-paved way.

The pastoral spirits first
 Approach Thee, Babe divine,
 For they in lowly thoughts are nursed,
 Meet for Thy lowly shrine ;
 Sooner then they should miss where Thou dost dwell
 Angels from heaven will stoop to guide them to Thy cell.

Still, as the day comes round
 For Thee to be revealed,
 By wakeful shepherds Thou art found,
 Abiding in the field ;
 All through the wintry heaven and chill night air
 In music and in light Thou dawnest on their prayer.

Oh faint not ye for fear—
 What though your wandering sheep,
 Reckless of what they see and hear,
 Lie lost in wilful sleep?
 High heaven, in mercy to your sad annoy,
 Still greets you with glad tidings of immortal joy.

Think on the eternal home,
 The Saviour left for you ;
 Think on the Lord most holy, come
 To dwell with hearts untrue :
 So shall ye tread untired His pastoral ways,
 And in the darkness sing your carol of high praise.

A Christmas Carol.

IT came upon the midnight clear
 That glorious song of old,
 From angels bending near the earth
 To touch their harps of gold :

“Peace on the earth—good will to men
 From heaven’s all gracious King ;”
 The world in solemn stillness lay
 To hear the angels sing.

Still through the cloven skies they come,
With peaceful wings unfurled,
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world.
Above its sad and lowly plains
Thy bend on heavenly wing,
And ever o'er its Babel sounds
The blessed angels sing.

Yet with the woes of sin and strife
The world has suffered long,
Beneath the angel-strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong ;
And man, at war with man, hears not
The love-song which they bring,—
Oh hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing !

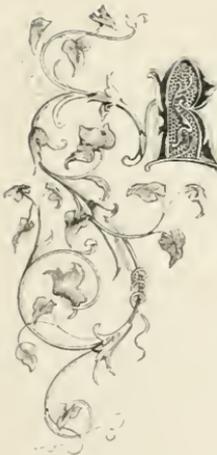

And ye, beneath life's crushing load
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way,
With painful steps and slow ;
Look now, for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing—
Oh rest beside the weary road
And hear the angels sing !

For lo ! the days are hastening on,
By prophet-bards foretold,
When, with the ever-circling years,
Comes round the age of gold !
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendours fling,
And the whole world send back the song
Which now the angels sing.

Robins and their Songs.

ROBIN, to the bare bough clinging,
What can thy blithe music mean?
Like a hidden fount, thy singing
Seems to clothe the trees with green.

What warm nest for thee hath nature
Where thy soft red breast to lay?
Sing'st thou, little homeless creature,
For the crumbs we strewed to-day?

Other birds have fled this dun light,
Soaring on to regions fair,
Singing in the richest sunlight,
Singing in the starlit air;

Hiding 'mid the broad-leaved shadows
Of the southern woods at noon,
Filling all the flower-starred meadows
With the melodies of June.

Knowest thou the woods have voices,
Poet-voices, full and clear;—
Strains at which the heart rejoices,
Feeling the unspoken near;

Pouring music like a river,
Many-toned and deep and strong,
Tones 'midst which, like childhood's, quiver
Thy few notes of simple song?

Then the "crimson-tipped" thing,
Like a daisy among birds,
With a quiet glee, did sing
Strains condensed thus in words :

"Well I know the joyous mazes
Of the songs so full and fine ;—
Very faint would be God's praises,
Sounded by no voice but mine !

"Yet the little child's sweet laughter,
Wakes it no responsive smile,
Though the poet singeth after,
And the angels all the while?

"What I sing I cannot measure,
Why I sing I cannot say,
But I know a well of pleasure
Springeth in my heart all day."

So I learned that crumbs are able
Lowly hearts to fill with song—
Crumbs from off that festal table
Lowly hearts will join ere long.

He who wintry hours hath given,
With the snows gives snow-drops birth :
And while angels sing in heaven,
God hears robins sing on earth.

Only keep thee on the wing,
Music dieth in the dust,
Nothing that but creeps can sing,
Soaring we can sing and trust.

"Make Thy face to shine upon Thy serbant."

CHRIST, whose glory fills the skies,
 Christ, the true, the only light,
 Sun of righteousness, arise,
 Triumph o'er the shades of night ;
 Dayspring from on high, be near,
 Daystar, in my heart appear.

Dark and cheerless is the morn,
 Unaccompanied by Thee ;
 Joyless is the day's return,
 Till Thy mercy's beams I see,
 Till they inward life impart,
 Glad my eyes and warm my heart.

Visit then this soul of mine,
 Pierce the gloom of sin and grief,
 Fill me, radiancy divine,
 Scatter all my unbelief,
 More and more Thyself display,
 Shining to the perfect day.

"Cast me not away from Thy Presence."

FORTH from the dark and stormy sky,
 Lord, to Thine altar's shade we fly ;
 Forth from the world, its hope and fear,
 Saviour, we seek Thy shelter here :
 Weary and weak, Thy grace we pray ;
 Turn not, O Lord, Thy guests away !

Long have we roamed in want and pain,
 Long have we sought Thy rest in vain ;
 Wildered in doubt, in darkness lost,
 Long have our souls been tempest-tost :
 Low at Thy feet our sins we lay :
 Turn not, O Lord, Thy guests away !

Looking unto Jesus.

THOU, who didst stoop below
 To drain the cup of woe,—
 Wearing the form of frail mortality ;—
 Thy blessed labours done,
 Thy crown of victory won,
 Hast passed from earth—passed to Thy home on high.

Man may no longer trace,
 In Thy celestial face,
 The image of the bright, the viewless One ;
 Nor may Thy servants hear,
 Save with faith's raptured ear,
 Thy voice of tenderness, God's only Son !

Our eyes behold Thee not,
 Yet hast Thou not forgot
 Those who have placed their hope, their trust in Thee ;
 Before Thy Father's face
 Thou hast prepared a place,
 That where Thou art, there may they also be.

It was no path of flowers,
 Through this dark world of ours,
 Beloved of the Father, Thou didst tread ;
 And shall we, in dismay,
 Shrink from the narrow way,
 When clouds and darkness are around it spread ?

O Thou, who art our life,
 Be with us through the strife !
 Was not Thy head by earth's fierce tempest bowed ?
 Raise Thou our eyes above
 To see a Father's love
 Beam, like the bow of promise, through the cloud.

E'en through the awful gloom
 Which hovers o'er the tomb,
 That light of love our guiding star shall be ;
 Our spirits shall not dread
 The shadowy way to tread,
 Friend, Guardian, Saviour, which doth lead to Thee.

Let us Pray.

WORD, what a change within us one short hour
 Spent in Thy presence will avail to make ;
 What burdens lighten, what temptations slake,
 What parched grounds refresh as with a shower.
 We kneel, and all around us seems to lower ;
 We rise, and all, the distant and the near,
 Stands forth in sunny outline, brave and clear ;

We kneel how weak, we rise how full of power :
 Why therefore should we do ourselves this wrong,
 Or others—that we are not always strong,
 That we are ever overborne with care,
 That we should ever weak or heartless be,
 Anxious or troubled, when with us is prayer.
 And joy and strength and courage, are with Thee.

Good

“Pray without ceasing.”

O when the morning shineth,
 Go when the moon is bright,
 Go when the eve declineth,
 Go in the hush of night :
 Go with pure mind and feeling,
 Fling earthly thoughts away,
 And in thy chamber kneeling,
 Do thou in secret pray.

Remember all who love thee,
 All who are loved by thee ;
 Pray too for those who hate thee,
 If any such there be :
 Then for thyself in meekness
 A blessing humbly claim,
 And link with each petition
 Thy great Redeemer's name.

But if 'tis e'er denied thee
 In solitude to pray,—
 Should holy thoughts come o'er thee
 When friends are round thy way ;
 E'en then the silent breathing
 Of thy spirit raised above,
 Shall reach His throne of glory,
 Who is mercy, truth, and love.

Oh, not a joy or blessing,
 With this can we compare,
 The power that He hath given us
 To pour our souls in prayer.
 Whene'er thou pin'st in sadness,
 Before His footstool fall :
 Remember in thy gladness
 His love who gave thee all.

Just as I am,

JUST as I am—without one plea,
 But that thy blood was shed for me,
 And that Thou bid'st me come to Thee—
 O Lamb of God, I come.

Just as I am—and waiting not
 To rid my soul of one dark blot ;
 To Thee whose blood can cleanse each spot—
 O Lamb of God, I come.

Just as I am—though tossed about
 With many a conflict, many a doubt,
 Fightings within and fears without—
 O Lamb of God, I come.

Just as I am—poor, wretched, blind ;
 Sight, riches, healing of the mind,
 Yea all I need, in Thee to find—
 O Lamb of God, I come.

Just as I am—Thou wilt receive,
 Wilt welcome, pardon, cleanse, relieve ;
 Because Thy promise I believe—
 O Lamb of God, I come.

Just as I am—Thy love unknown
 Has broken every barrier down ;
 Now to be Thine, yea, Thine alone—
 O Lamb of God, I come.

Nearer Home.

NE sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er—
I'm nearer home to-day,
Than I ever have been before.

Nearer my Father's house,
Where the many mansions be ;
Nearer the great white throne ;
Nearer the crystal sea—

Nearer the bound of life,
Where we lay our burdens down ;
Nearer leaving the cross ;
Nearer gaining the crown.

But lying darkly between,
Winding down through the night,
Is the dim and unknown stream
That leads at last to the light.

Closer, closer, my feet
Come to that dark abysm ;
Closer death to my lips
Presses the awful chrysm.

Saviour, perfect my trust,
Strengthen the might of my faith ;
Let me feel as I would when I stand
On the rock of the shore of death.

Feel as I would when my feet
Are slipping o'er the brink ;
For it may be, I'm nearer home,
Nearer now than I think.

A Death-bed Hymn.

We would see Jesus"—for the shadows lengthen
 Across this little landscape of our life ;
 "We would see Jesus,"—our weak faith to strengthen
 For the last weariness—the final strife.

"We would see Jesus"—for life's hand hath rested
 With its dark touch upon both heart and brow !
 And though our souls have many a billow breasted,
 Others are rising in the distance now.

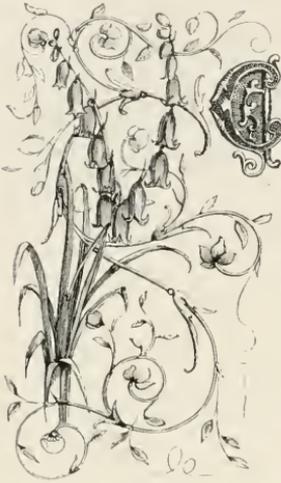

"We would see Jesus"—the great rock foundation
 Whereon our feet were set by sovereign grace ;
 Not life, nor death, with all their agitation,
 Shall thence remove us, if we see His face.

"We would see Jesus"—other lights are paling,
 Which for long years we have rejoiced to see :
 The blessings of our pilgrimage are failing,
 We would not mourn them, for we go to Thee.

"We would see Jesus"—yet the spirit lingers
 Round the dear objects it has loved so long ;
 And earth to earth can scarce unclothe its fingers,
 Our love to Thee makes not this love less strong.

"We would see Jesus"—sense is all too blinding,
 And heaven appears too dim—too far away ;
 We would see Thee, to gain a sweet reminding,
 That Thou hast promised our great debt to pay.

"We would see Jesus"—this is all we're needing ;
 Strength, joy, and willingness come with the sight :
 "We would see Jesus"—dying, risen, pleading ;
 Then welcome day, and farewell mortal night.

The Sleep of Death.

CALM on the bosom of Thy God,
Fair spirit, rest thee now!
E'en while with us thy footstep trod,
His seal was on thy brow.

Dust, to its narrow house beneath!
Soul, to its place on high!
They who have seen thy look in death
No more may fear to die.

Lone are the paths, and sad the bowers,
Whence thy sweet smile is gone;
But oh! a brighter home than ours,
In heaven is now thine own.

Heaven.

HI talk to me of heaven, I love
To hear about my home above,
For there doth many a loved one dwell,
In light and joy ineffable.
Oh tell me how they shine and sing,
While every harp rings echoing;
While every glad and tearless eye
Beams like the bright sun gloriously.
Tell me of that celestial calm
Each face in glory weareth,
Tell me of that victorious palm
Each hand in glory beareth.

O happy, happy country, where
There enters not a sin,
And death, who keeps the portals fair,
May never once come in ;
No grief can change their day to night,
The darkness of that land is light,
Sorrow and sighing God has sent
Far thence to endless banishment.
And never more may one dark tear
Bedim their burning eyes,
For every one they shed while here,
In fearful agonies,
Glitters a bright and dazzling gem
In their immortal diadem.
O lovely blooming country, there
Flourishes all that we deem fair.
For though no fields nor forests green,
Nor bowery gardens there are seen,
Nor perfumes load the breeze,
Nor hears the ear material sound,
Yet joys at God's right hand are found,
The archetypes of these.

This is the home, the land of birth
Of all we highest prize on earth ;
The storms that rack this world beneath
Shall there for ever cease.
The only air the blessed breathe
Is purity and peace.
Oh may heaven's gate unclose to me,
Oh may I too its glories see,
And my faint, fighting spirit stand
Within that happy, happy land.

At Home in Heaven.

FOR ever with the Lord !"
Amen ; so let it be ;
Life from the dead is in that word,
'Tis immortality.

Here in the body pent,
Absent from Him I roam,
Yet nightly pitch my moving tent
A day's march nearer home.

My Father's house on high,
Home of my soul, how near
At times to faith's far seeing eye,
Thy golden gates appear !

Ah ! then my spirit faints
To reach the land I love,
The bright inheritance of saints,
Jerusalem above.

Yet clouds will intervene,
And all my prospect flies !
Like Noah's dove, I flit between
Rough seas and stormy skies.

Anon the clouds dispart,
The winds and waters cease,
While sweetly o'er my gladdened heart
Expands the bow of peace.

Beneath its glowing arch,
Along the hallowed ground,
I see cherubic armies march,
A camp of fire around.

I hear at morn and even,
At noon and midnight hour,
The choral harmonies of heaven
Earth's Babel tongues o'erpower.

Then, then I feel that He,
(Remembered or forgot.)
The Lord is never far from me,
Though I perceive Him not.

In darkness as in light,
Hidden alike from view,
I sleep, I wake, as in His sight
Who looks all nature through.

From the dim hour of birth,
Through every changing state
Of mortal pilgrimage on earth,
Till its appointed date.

All that I am, have been,
All that I yet may be,
He sees at once, as He hath seen,
And shall for ever see.

How can I meet His eyes?
Mine on the cross I cast,
And own my life a Saviour's prize,
Mercy from first to last.

"For ever with the Lord!"
Father, if 'tis Thy will,
The promise of that faithful word,
E'en here to me fulfil.

Be thou at my right hand,
Then can I never fail;
Uphold Thou me, and I shall stand;
Fight, and I must prevail.

So when my latest breath
Shall rend the veil in twain,
By death I shall escape from death,
And life eternal gain.

Knowing as I am known,
How shall I love that word,
And oft repeat before the throne,
"For ever with the Lord."

Then, though the soul enjoy
Communion high and sweet,
While worms this body must destroy,
Both shall in glory meet.

The trump of final doom
Will speak the self-same word,
And heaven's voice thunder through the tomb,
"For ever with the Lord."

The tomb shall echo deep
That death-awakening sound;
The saints shall hear it in their sleep,
And answer from the ground.

Then, upward as they fly,
That resurrection-word
Shall be their shout of victory,
"For ever with the Lord."

That resurrection-word,
That shout of victory,
Once more, "For ever with the Lord!"
Amen, so let it be!

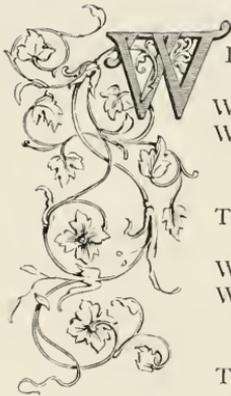

“She is not dead, but sleepeth.”

THE baby wept ;
The mother took it from the nurse’s arms,
And soothed its grief, and stilled its vain alarms,
And baby slept.

Again it weeps ;
And God doth take it from the mother’s arms,
From present pain, and future unknown harms,
And baby sleeps.

His Servants shall serve Him.

WE seek that land whose light e’en now,
Though dim and far, is all our gladness.
Whose hope, in storms, is God’s own bow ;
Whose peace, the rest from care and woe :
Whose love, our joy in sadness.

There day and night Thy happy saints
In ceaseless work find rest unending,
Where in Thy strength theirs never faints,
Where tears are dried, and hushed complaints,
All in one worship bending.

The service here we strive to pay
By weakness marred, by darkness clouded ;
Strong in Thy strength, bright with Thy day,
We there shall offer perfectly,
In light and love unshrouded.

Our hearts, whose love has taught them this,
Their wants to feel, their own unmeetness,
Shall learn, in that ne'er ending bliss,
To rise towards thine own perfectness,
Thine infinite completeness.

The songs, here drownèd in the moan
Of earth's unrest, which ceaseth never,
Shall rise, in strains of joy unknown,
To Him who sitteth on the throne,
And to the Lamb for ever.

And for our feet, to earth which cling,
Feeble and slow, too oft unwilling,
Thou there shalt give an angel's wing
To serve, as angels do, our King,
Thy high behests fulfilling.

So let us strive, with earnest soul,
Thy work to do, though small the measure,
Knowing it part of one great whole,
All tending to our highest goal,
Thy perfect will and pleasure.

And they shall see His face.

WHAT must it be to dwell above,
At God's right hand, where Jesus reigns,
Since the sweet earnest of His love
O'erwhelms us on these dreary plains!
No heart can think, no tongue explain,
What bliss it is with Christ to reign.

When sin no more obstructs our sight,
When sorrow pains our heart no more,
How shall we view the Prince of Light,
And all His works of grace explore!
What heights and depths of love divine
Will there through endless ages shine!

Well, He has fixed the happy day
When the last tears will wet our eyes,
And God shall wipe those tears away,
And fill us with divine surprise
To hear His voice, and see His face,
And feel His infinite embrace!

This is the heaven I long to know;
For this with patience I would wait.
Till, weaned from earth and all below,
I mount to my celestial seat,
And wave my palm, and wear my crown,
And, with the elders, cast them down.

Who shall ascend to the holy place?

Who shall ascend to the holy place,
And stand on the holy hill?
Who shall the boundless realms of space
With shouts of rapture thrill?
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
For the Lord God omnipotent reigneth!

The servants of the Lord are they,
The pure in heart and hand,
For whom the eternal bars give way,
The eternal gates expand!
Hallelujah! &c.

Not to the noble, not to the strong,
To the wealthy or the wise,
Is given a part in that angel-song,
That music of the skies:
Hallelujah! &c.

But those who, in humble and holy fear,
With child-like faith and love,
Have served the Lord as their Master here,
Shall praise their Lord above.
Hallelujah! &c.

And chiefly those who in youth to Him
Their morn of life have given,
With Cherubim and Seraphim,
And all the host of heaven,
Hallelujah! &c.

Shall stand in robes of purest white;
And to the Lamb shall raise
The song that rests not day or night,
The eternity of praise.
Hallelujah! &c.

The City of our God.

LORIOUS things of thee are spoken,
Zion, city of our God!
He whose word cannot be broken,
Formed thee for, His own abode :
On the Rock of Ages founded,
What can shake thy sure repose?
With salvation's wall surrounded,
Thou may'st smile at all thy foes.

See! the streams of living waters,
Springing from eternal love,
Well supply thy sons and daughters,
And all fear of want remove :
Who can faint while such a river
Ever flows, their thirst to assuage?
Grace which, like the Lord, the Giver,
Never fails from age to age.

Round each habitation hovering,
See the cloud and fire appear !
For a glory and a covering,
Showing that the Lord is near ;
Thus deriving from their banner,
Light by night and shade by day,
Safe they feed upon the manna
Which He gives them when they pray.

Blest inhabitants of Zion,
 Washed in the Redeemer's blood !
 Jesus, whom their souls rely on,
 Makes them kings and priests to God :
 'Tis His love His people raises
 Over self to reign as kings ;
 And, as priests, his solemn praises
 Each for a thank-offering brings.

Saviour, if of Zion's city
 I through grace a member am ;
 Let the world deride or pity,
 I will glory in Thy name :
 Fading is the worldling's pleasure,
 All his boasted pomp and show ;
 Solid joys and lasting treasure,
 None but Zion's children know.

Bought with a Price.

SAVIOUR of men, and Lord of love,
 How sweet Thy gracious name !
 With joy that errand we review
 On which Thy mercy came.

While all Thine own angelic bands
 Stood waiting on the wing,
 Charmed with the honour to obey
 The word of such a King,—

For us mean, wretched, sinful men,
 Thou laidst that glory by,
 First in our mortal flesh to serve,
 Then in that flesh to die.

Bought with Thy service and Thy blood,
 We doubly, Lord, are Thine ;
 To Thee our lives we would devote,
 To Thee our death resign.

He had not where to lay His head.

BIRDS have their quiet nest,
Foxes their holes, and man his peaceful bed ;
All creatures have their rest,
But Jesus had not where to lay His head.

Winds have their hour of calm,
And waves, to slumber on the voiceless deep :
Eve hath its breath of balm,
To hush all senses and all sounds to sleep.

The wild deer hath its lair,
The homeward flock the shelter of their shed ;
All have their rest from care,—
But Jesus had not where to lay His head.

And yet He came to give
The weary and the heavy-laden rest ;
To bid the sinner live,
And soothe my griefs to slumber on His breast.

What then am I, my God,
Permitted thus the paths of peace to tread ?
Peace, purchased by the blood
Of Him who had not where to lay His head.

I, who once made Him grieve,
I, who once made His gentle spirit mourn ;
Whose hand essayed to weave
For His meek brow the cruel crown of thorn :—

O why should I have peace?
 Why! but for that unchanged, undying love,
 Which would not, could not cease,
 Until it made me heir of joys above.

Yes, but for pardoning grace,
 I feel I never should in glory see
 The brightness of that face,
 That once was pale and agonized for me.

Let the birds seek their nest,
 Foxes their holes, and man his peaceful bed:
 Come, Saviour, in my breast
 Deign to repose Thine oft-rejected head!

On earth Thou lovest best
 To dwell in humble souls that mourn for sin?
 O come and take Thy rest,
 This broken, bleeding, contrite heart within.

The Righteous Advocate.

AATHER, I bring this worthless child to Thee,
 To claim Thy pardon, once, yet once again.
 Receive him at my hand, for he is mine.
 He is a worthless child; he owns his fault;
 Look not on him, he will not bear the glance;
 Look but on me, I'll hide his filthy garments.
 He pleads not for himself, he dares not plead:
 His cause is mine, I am his Intercessor.
 By that unchanged, unchanging love of Thine,
 By each pure drop of blood I shed for him,
 By all the sorrows graven on my soul,

By every wound I bear, I claim it true,
Father divine! I would not have him lost;
He is a worthless child, but he is mine!
Sin hath destroyed him—sin hath died in me;
Satan hath bound him—Satan is my slave;
Death hath desired him—I have conquered death.
My Father, hear him now, not him, but me!
I would not have him lost for all the worlds
Which Thou hast long created for my glory,
Because he is a poor, a worthless child,
And all his every hope on me it lies,
I know my children, and I know him mine.
By all the sighs he pours o'er outcast Israel,
By all the prayers he breathes o'er Judah's sins,
I know him by the sign my children bear,
That trusting love, by which he cleaves to me.
I could not bear to see him cast away,
Vile as he is! the weakest of my flock,
The one that grieves me most and loves me least.
Yes! though his sins dim every spark of love,
I measure not my love by his returns,
And though the stripes I send to bring him home
Should seem to drive him further from my arms,
Still he is mine! I lured him from the world;
He has no right, no home, but in my love,
Though earth and hell combined against him rise.
I'm bound to rescue him, for we are one.

O sinner! what an Advocate is thine;
Methinks I see Him lead the captive in,
Poor, sorrowful, ashamed, trembling with fear,
Shrinking behind his Lord, accused, condemned,
Well pleased to hide the form himself abhors
With that all spotless garment of his Friend.
But look! some secret impulse lifts his eye,
To see if love be mingled now with wrath,
If mercy beams upon the Father's face.
Poor sinner! read thy welcome in that smile
And hear the Father's word to Him for thee.
"Take thy poor worthless child! I have forgiven."

“As many as touched were made perfectly whole.”

BEHAVIOUR divine, we bend before Thee lowly,
Sadly we bring into Thy presence holy
Our hearts, so sin oppressed ;
Touching the border of Thy garment pure,
Whose touch all sorrow and all sin can cure,
We ask Thee for Thy rest.

And in so stooping, higher shall we reach
Than e'en the highest point our hearts can teach,
Even, dear Lord, to Thee,
Whose lowliness hath raised us to such height,
That we may dare to touch Thy garment white,
Of matchless purity.

Thy gentleness, O Christ, hath made us great,
Thy uncrowned majesty our lost estate
Redeemed by bitter woe ;
And though our trembling fingers feebly hold,
Yea, scarcely touch Thy holy garment's fold.
Thou wilt not let us go.

Thy love, the source of ours, shall still abide,
Shall draw us, wandering, closer to Thy side,
And make us wholly pure ;
Led ever higher by its light divine,
Wrapped in its heavenly beauty shall we shine,
In love and rest secure.

“Create in me a clean heart.”

H for a heart to praise my God,
A heart from sin set free ;
A heart that's sprinkled with the blood
So freely shed for me !

A heart resigned, submissive, meek,
My dear Redeemer's throne :
Where only Christ is heard to speak,
Where Jesus reigns alone !

A lowly and believing heart,
Abhorring every sin ;
Which neither life nor death can part
From Him that dwells within.

A heart in every thought renewed,
And filled with love divine ;
Perfect and right, and pure and good ;
A copy, Lord, of Thine.

Thy nature, gracious Lord, impart,
Come quickly from above :
Write Thy new name upon my heart,
Thy new, best name of LOVE.

“Renew a right spirit within me.”

GRACIOUS Spirit, dwell with me,
I myself would gracious be ;
And with words that help and heal,
Would Thy life in mine reveal ;
And with actions bold and meek,
Would for Christ, my Saviour, speak.

Truthful Spirit, dwell with me,
I myself would truthful be ;
And with wisdom kind and clear,
Let Thy life in mine appear,
And with actions brotherly,
Speak my Lord's sincerity.

Tender Spirit, dwell with me,
I myself would tender be ;
Shut my heart up like a flower
At temptation's darksome hour ;
Open it when shines the sun,
And his love by fragrance own.

Silent Spirit, dwell with me.
I myself would quiet be,
Quiet as the growing blade
That through earth its way has made,
Silently, like morning light,
Putting mists and chills to flight.

Mighty Spirit, dwell with me,
I myself would mighty be ;
Mighty so as to prevail
Where, unaided, man must fail ;
Ever by a mighty hope,
Pressing on and bearing up.

Holy Spirit, dwell with me,
I myself would holy be ;
Separate from sin, I would
Choose and cherish all things good,
And whatever I can be,
Give to Him, who gave me Thee.

“Lovest thou Me?”

LOVEST thou Me?" I hear my Saviour say :
 Would that my heart had power to answer, "Yea,
 Thou knowest all things, Lord, in heaven above
 And earth beneath ; Thou knowest that I love."

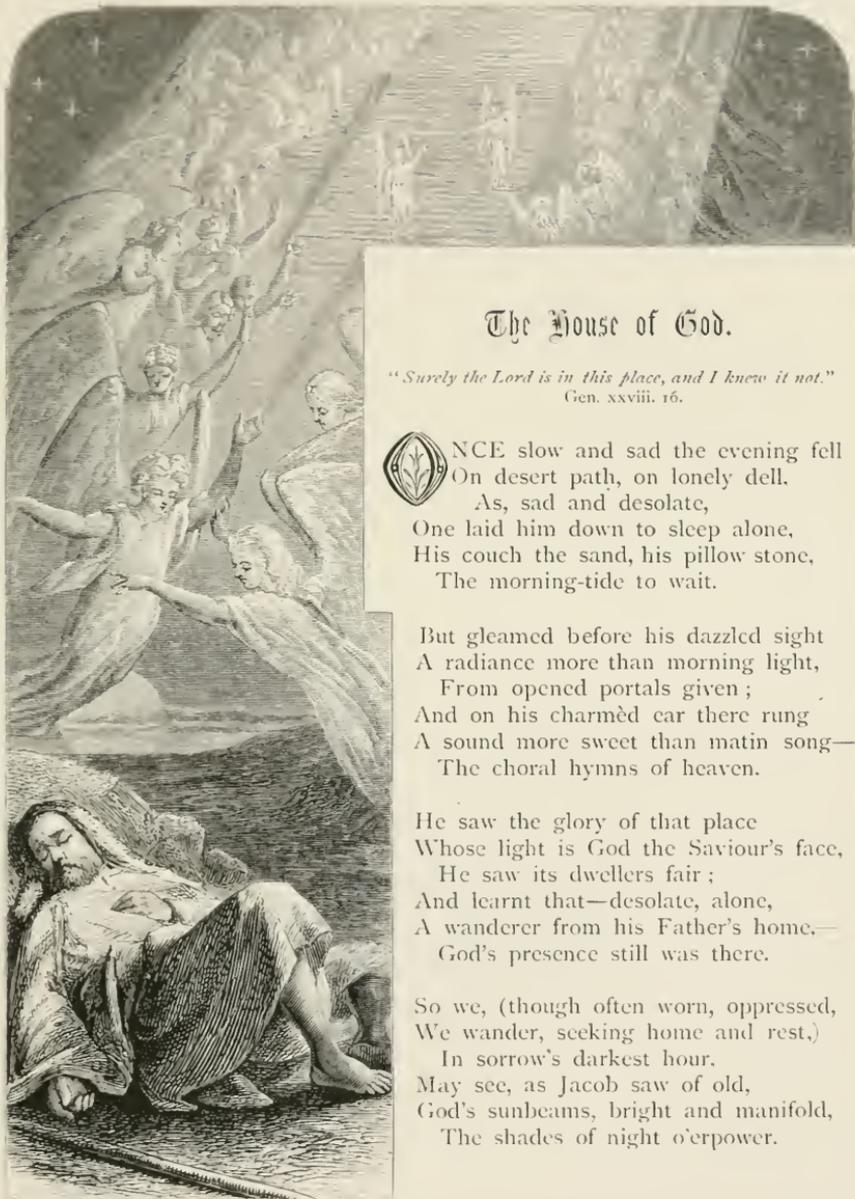

But 'tis not so ; in word, in deed, in thought,
 I do not, cannot, love thee as I ought ;
 Thy love must give that power, Thy love alone ;
 There's nothing worthy of Thee but Thine own ;
 Lord, with the Love wherewith Thou lovest me,
 Reflected on Thyself, I would love Thee.

“Hide me under the Shadow of Thy wings.”

TILL nigh me, O my Saviour, stand,
 And guard in fierce temptation's hour ;
 Hide in the hollow of Thy hand ;
 Show forth in me Thy saving power :
 Still be Thine arm my sure defence,
 Nor earth nor hell shall pluck me thence.

In suffering be Thy love my peace !
 In weakness be Thy love my power !
 And when the storms of life shall cease,
 Jesus, in that important hour,
 In death, as life, be Thou my guide,
 And save me, who for me hast died.

The House of God.

"Surely the Lord is in this place, and I knew it not."
Gen. xxviii. 16.

ONCE slow and sad the evening fell
On desert path, on lonely dell.
As, sad and desolate,
One laid him down to sleep alone,
His couch the sand, his pillow stone,
The morning-tide to wait.

But gleamed before his dazzled sight
A radiance more than morning light,
From opened portals given ;
And on his charmed ear there rung
A sound more sweet than matin song—
The choral hymns of heaven.

He saw the glory of that place
Whose light is God the Saviour's face,
He saw its dwellers fair ;
And learnt that—desolate, alone,
A wanderer from his Father's home.—
God's presence still was there.

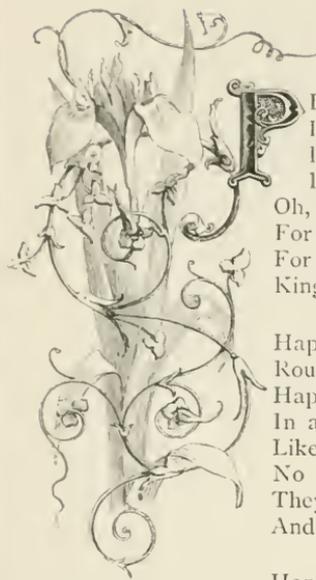

So we, (though often worn, oppressed,
We wander, seeking home and rest,)
In sorrow's darkest hour,
May see, as Jacob saw of old,
God's sunbeams, bright and manifold,
The shades of night o'erpower.

For not in temple hoar alone,
In cloistered shade, 'neath sculptured stone,
Stands now God's house below ;
But wheresoe'er His radiance bright
Gleams on our darkness and 'tis light,
His presence we may know.

Transfigured in His glory fair
The whole earth stands, one house of prayer,
One ante-room of heaven ;
For surely, though we know it not,
God's presence is in every spot,
To those who seek it given.

Then let us strive, and work, and wait,
As those who see that opened gate,
That glory in our night ;
So that at last, through Christ the way,
We too may tread that land of day,
Where God, the Lord, is light.

 Paraphrase on Psalm lxxvii.

PLEASANT are Thy courts above,
 In the land of light and love ;
 Pleasant are Thy courts below
 In this land of sin and woe,
 Oh, my spirit longs and faints
 For the converse of Thy saints ;
 For the brightness of Thy face,
 King of Glory, God of grace.

Happy birds that sing and fly
 Round Thine altars, O most High !
 Happier souls that find a rest
 In a heavenly Father's breast !
 Like the wandering dove that found
 No repose on earth around,
 They can to their ark repair,
 And enjoy it ever there.

Happy souls, their praises flow
 Ever in this vale of woe ;
 Waters in the desert rise,
 Manna feeds them from the skies ;
 On they go from strength to strength,
 Till they reach Thy throne at length,
 At Thy feet adoring fall
 Who hast led them safe through all.

Lord, be mine this prize to win,
 Guide me through a world of sin,
 Keep me by Thy saving grace,
 Give me at Thy side a place.
 Sun and shield alike Thou art ;
 Guide and guard my erring heart :
 Grace and glory flow from Thee ;
 Shower, oh shower them, Lord, on me.

The Exile's Vision.

HE blue Egean's countless waves in Sabbath sunlight smiled,
And murmuring washed the rocky shore of that lone island wild ;
Where unto him, "whom Jesus loved," such views sublime were given,
That e'en the land of exile shone "the very gate of heaven!"

He saw the radiant form of Him, upon whose sorrowing breast,
At the last supper's solemn feast, his weary head found rest ;
One "like unto the Son of man," all glorious to behold,
Arrayed in robes of dazzling light, and girt with purest gold.

His head and hair were white as wool ; His eyes a fiery flame,
Not tearful now as when He trod this world of sin and shame ;
His countenance was as the sun, His voice was as the sound
Of many waters, murmuring deep in harmony profound.

But when before His feet, as dead, the loved disciple fell,
How gently deigned the Prince of life His servant's fears to quell !
And give him strength to see his face, whom highest heavens adore,
The Lord, who "liveth, and was dead," and lives for evermore !

Oh! then upon his raptured gaze what floods of glory streamed;
 He saw the land of love and light—the home of the redeemed;
 He stood by life's resplendent stream, whose tide in music rolled
 Throughout the holy city's length among its streets of gold.

He heard the mighty new-made song, to angel-hosts unknown,
 Go up like incense unto Him that sat upon the throne;
 And the pure strains by seraphs sung in that celestial sphere,
 In sweetest cadence rose and fell upon his listening ear.

Within the flashing walls of heaven, with jewelled splendour bright,
 He saw the countless multitudes arrayed in saintly white:
 He marked them with their waving palms, in worship bending low
 Before the feet of Him who smiled beneath the emerald bow.

The pearly gates, the crystal sea, the universal hymn,
 The sun-bright forms, the brilliant eyes, which tears may never dim,
 The healing trees, the fadeless flowers, the harpings of the blest,
 In splendid vision to his soul revealed the promised rest.

Long since that aged saint hath reached the fair celestial shore,
 And gained the martyr's crown, for he the martyr's suffering bore;
 Long since his happy feet have stood within his Father's home,
 Yet still the mighty voice he heard, with ceaseless cry, saith, "Come!"

And life's bright fountain springeth yet, as free, and fresh and fair,
 As when in Patmos' dreary isle it cheered the exile there!
 And hark! the Spirit and the Bride repeat in mercy still,
 That he who is athirst may drink—yea, whosoever will!

O blessed voices! be it ours your loving call to hear
 And so obey that when, at last, from yonder radiant sphere
 The heavenly bridegroom shall descend to claim His own again.
 We may lift up our heads and say, "Lord, even so, Amen!"

Sabbath Morning.

LIGHT of light, enlighten me
 Now anew the day is dawn-
 ing;
 Sun of grace, the shadows flee,
 Brighten Thou my sabbath
 morning,
 With thy joyous sunshine blest,
 Happy is my day of rest.

Fount of all our joy and peace,
 To Thy living waters lead me,
 Thou from earth my soul release,
 And with grace and mercy feed me;
 Bless Thy word that it may prove
 Rich in fruits that Thou dost love.

Kindle Thou the sacrifice
 That upon my lips is lying;
 Clear the shadows from mine eyes,
 That, from every error flying,
 No strange fire may in me glow
 That Thine altar doth not know.

Let me, with my heart to-day,
 Holy, holy, holy, singing,
 Rapt awhile from earth away,
 All my soul to Thee upspring-
 ing,
 Have a foretaste inly given
 How they worship Thee in heaven.

Rest in me and I in Thee,
 Build a paradise within me;
 O reveal Thyself to me,
 Blessed love, who diedst to win
 me;
 Fed by Thine exhaustless urn,
 Pure and bright my lamp shall burn.

Hence all care, all vanity,
 For the day to God is holy:
 Come, thou glorious majesty,
 Deign to fill this temple lowly,
 Nought to-day my soul shall move,
 Simply resting in Thy love.

Communion with God.

LORD, I am come alone with Thee!
 Thy voice to hear, Thy face to see,
 And feel Thy presence near;
 It is not fancy's lovely dream,
 Though wondrous e'en to faith it seem,
 That Thou dost wait me here.

A moment from this outward life,
 Its service, self-denial, strife,
 I joyfully retreat,
 My soul, through intercourse with Thee,
 Strengthened, refreshed, and calmed shall be,
 Its scenes again to meet.

How can it be that one so mean,
 A sinner, selfish, dark, unclean,
 Thus in the holiest stands:
 And in that light divinely pure,
 Which may no stain of sin endure,
 Lifts up rejoicing hands?

Jesus! the answer Thou hast given!
 Thy death, Thy life, have opened heaven,
 And all its joy to me;
 Washed in Thy blood—oh wondrous grace!
 I'm holy as the holy place
 In which I worship Thee.

How sweet, how solemn, thus to lie
 And feel Jehovah's searching eye
 On me well pleased can rest!
 Because with His beloved Son
 The Father's grace has made me one,
 I must be always blest.

The secret pangs I could not tell
 To dearest friend,—Thou knowest well,
 They claim Thy gracious heart ;
 Thou dost remove with tender care,
 Or sweetly give me strength to bear,
 The sanctifying smart.

Thy presence has a wondrous power ;
 The sharpest thorn becomes a flower,
 And breathes a sweet perfume ;
 Whate'er looked dark and sad before,
 With happy light shines silvered o'er,—
 There's no such thing as gloom !

Thou knowest I have a cross to bear ;
 The needful stroke Thou dost not spare,
 To keep me near Thy side ;
 But when I see the chastening rod
 In Thy pierced hand, my Lord, my God,
 I feel so satisfied !

In Suffering.

NATHER, Thy will, not mine, be done ;
 So prayed on earth Thy suffering Son ;
 So in His name I pray.
 The Spirit faints, the flesh is weak,
 Thy help in agony I seek,
 Oh ! take this cup away.

If such be not Thy sovereign will,
 Thy wiser purpose then fulfil ;
 My wishes I resign ;
 Into Thy hands my soul commend,
 On Thee for life or death depend ;
 Thy will be done, not mine.

Clear Shining after rain.

SOMETH sunshine after rain,
After mourning joy again.
After heavy bitter grief
Dawneth surely sweet relief!
And my soul, who from her height
Sank to realms of woe and night.
Wingeth now to heaven her flight.

None was ever left a prey,
None was ever turned away.
Who had given himself to God,
And on Him had cast his load.
Who in God His hope hath placed
Shall not life in pain out-waste,
Fullest joy he yet shall taste.

Though to-day may not fulfil
All thy hopes, have patience still.
For perchance to-morrow's sun
Sees thy happier days begun ;
As God willeth march the hours,
Bringing joy at last in showers,
When whate'er we asked is ours.

Every sorrow, every smart.
That the Eternal Father's heart
Hath appointed me of yore,
Or hath yet for me in store,
As my life flows on I'll take
Calmly, gladly for His sake,
No more faithless murmurs make.

I will meet distress and pain,
I will greet e'en death's dark reign,
I will lay me in the grave,
With a heart still glad and brave ;
Whom the Strongest doth defend,
Whom the Highest counts His friend,
Cannot perish in the end.

Songs of Praise.

SONGS of praise the angels sang,
Heaven with hallelujahs rang,
When Jehovah's work begun,
When He spake and it was done.

Songs of praise awoke the morn,
When the Prince of peace was born ;
Songs of praise arose, when He
Captive led captivity.

Heaven and earth must pass away,
Songs of praise shall crown that day :
God will make new heavens and earth,
Songs of praise shall hail their birth.

And will man alone be dumb,
Till that glorious kingdom come ?
No :—the church delights to raise
Psalms, and hymns, and songs of praise.

Saints below, with heart and voice,
Still in songs of praise rejoice :
Learning here, by faith and love,
Songs of praise to sing above.

Borne upon their latest breath,
Songs of praise shall conquer death ;
Then, amidst eternal joy,
Songs of praise their powers employ.

The Angel of Patience.

TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN.

THROUGHOUT this earth in stillness

An angel walks abroad,
For consoling in our weakness

He is strengthened of the Lord !

Peace in his look abideth,

With a mild and quiet grace,

Oh ! follow where he guideth,

Follow patience in thy race.

He ever truly leads thee

Through suffering here below,

And, speaking oft to cheer thee,

A brighter time he'll show.

Does thy heart sink despairing ?

Thy hope he doth recall,

He helps thee in cross-bearing.

To good he turneth all.

He calms to quiet sadness

The anguish of thy breast ;

The heart that was so restless,

In humility hath rest.

Thy darkest hour of weeping

He bringeth by degrees,

Though thy wound be slow in heal-
ing,

He gives thee certain ease.

Thy tears no anger cause him,

He waiteth to console,

He chides not thy desiring,

With grace he stills thy soul.

When troubles round are raging,

Murm'ring thou askest " Why ? "

Voiceless—thy grief assuaging,

He smiles and points on high.

Not for all anxious questions

Doth he replies prepare,

The sum of his monitions,

" Endure—soon ends thy care. "

Thus with thy footsteps blending,

His words are few and plain,

And his thoughts are only tending

To the great, the glorious aim.

Incompleteness.

NOTHING resting in its own completeness
 Can have worth or beauty : but alone
 Because it leads and tends to further sweetness,
 Fuller, higher, deeper, than its own.

Spring's real glory dwells not in the meaning,
 Gracious though it be, of her blue hours :
 But is hidden in her tender leaning
 To the summer's richer wealth of flowers.

Dawn is fair because the mists fade slowly
 Into day, which floods the world with light :
 Twilight's mystery is so sweet and holy,
 Just because it ends in starry night.

Childhood's smiles unconscious graces borrow
 From strife, that in a far-off future lies ;
 And angel-glances (veiled now by life's sorrow)
 Draw our hearts to some beloved eyes.

Life is only bright, when it proceedeth
 Towards a truer, deeper life above ;
 Human love is sweetest when it leadeth
 To a more divine and perfect love.

Learn the mystery of progression duly,
 Do not call each glorious change decay ;
 But know we only hold our treasures truly
 When it seems as if they passed away :

Nor dare to blame God's gifts for incompleteness :
 In that want their beauty lies ; they roll
 Towards some infinite depth of love and sweetness,
 Bearing onwards man's reluctant soul.

Nearer to Thee.

NEARER, my God, to Thee,—
 Nearer to Thee,
 E'en though it be a cross
 That raiseth me :
 Still all my song would be,
 Nearer, my God, to Thee,
 Nearer to Thee.

Though like the wanderer,
 Daylight all gone,
 Darkness be o'er me,
 My rest a stone ;
 Yet, in my dreams, I'd be
 Nearer, my God, to Thee,
 Nearer to Thee.

There let the way appear
 Steps unto heaven ;
 All that Thou sendest me,
 In mercy given ;
 Angels to beckon me
 Nearer, my God, to Thee,
 Nearer to Thee.

Then with my waking thoughts
 Bright with Thy praise,
 Out of my stony griefs
 Bethel I'll raise ;
 So by my woes to be
 Nearer, my God, to Thee,
 Nearer to Thee.

Or if on joyful wing
 Cleaving the sky,
 Sun, moon, and stars forgot,
 Upwards I fly :
 Still all my song shall be,
 Nearer, my God, to Thee,
 Nearer to Thee.

Christ alone beareth me
 Where Thou dost shine :
 Joint-heir He maketh me
 Of the divine !
 In Christ my soul shall be
 Nearer, my God, to Thee,
 Nearer to Thee.

“Tribulation worketh Patience.”

AS the harp strings only render
All their treasures of sweet sound,
All their music, glad or tender,
Firmly struck or tightly bound ;

So the hearts of Christians owe
Each its deepest, sweetest strain,
To the pressure firm of woe,
And the tension tight of pain.

Spices crushed their pungence yield,
Trodden scents their sweets respire ;
Would you have its strength revealed,
Cast the incense in the fire.

Thus the crushed and broken frame
Oft doth sweetest graces yield ;
And through suffering toil and shame,
From the martyr's keenest flame,
Heavenly incense is distilled !

Clinging to Thee.

HOLY Saviour, Friend unseen,
Since on Thine arm Thou bidst me lean,
Help me, throughout life's varying scene,
By faith to cling to Thee !

Blest with this fellowship divine,
Take what Thou wilt, I'll ne'er repine,
E'en as the branches to the vine
My soul would cling to Thee.

Far from her home, fatigued, opprest,
Here she has found her place of rest ;
An exile still, yet not unblest,
While she can cling to Thee !

Without a murmur I dismiss
My former dreams of earthly bliss ;
My joy, my consolation this,
Each hour to cling to Thee !

What though the world deceitful prove,
And earthly friends and joys remove ;
With patient, uncomplaining love
Still would I cling to Thee !

Oft when I seem to tread alone
Some barren waste with thorns o'ergrown,
Thy voice of love, in tenderest tone,
Whispers, "Still cling to Me ;"

Though faith and hope awhile be tried,
I ask not, need not, aught beside ;
How safe, how calm, how satisfied,
The souls that cling to Thee !

They fear not Satan or the grave,
They feel Thee near and strong to save,
Nor fear to cross e'en Jordan's wave,
Because they cling to Thee ;

Blest is my lot, whate'er befall ;
What can disturb me, what appal,
Whilst as my Rock, my Strength, my All,
Saviour, I cling to Thee !

“Cast down, but not destroyed.”

UCH have I borne, but not as I should bear ;
The proud will unsubdued, the formal prayer,
Tell me Thou yet wilt chide, Thou canst not spare,
O Lord, Thy chastening rod !

O help me, Father, for my sinful heart
Back from this discipline of grief would start,
Unmindful of His sorer, deeper smart,
Who died for me, my God !

Yet if each wish denied, each woe and pain,
Break but some link of that oppressive chain
Which binds us still to earth, and leaves a stain
Thou only canst remove—

Then am I blest—O bliss from man concealed !
If here to Christ, the weak one's tower and shield,
My heart through sorrow be set free to yield
A service of deep love.

Thankfulness.

Y God, I thank Thee who hast made
The earth so bright ;
So full of splendour and of joy,
Beauty and light ;
So many glorious things are here,
Noble and right.

I thank Thee, too, that Thou hast made
Joy to abound ;
So many gentle thoughts and deeds
Circling us round,
That in the darkest spot of earth
Some love is found.

I thank Thee more that all our joy
Is touched with pain ;
That shadows fall on brightest hours,
That thorns remain ;
So that earth's bliss may be our guide,
And not our chain.

For Thou who knowest, Lord, how soon
Our weak heart clings,
Hast given us joys, tender and true,
Yet all with wings.
So that we see gleaming on high
Diviner things.

I thank Thee, Lord, that Thou has kept
The best in store ;
We have enough, yet not too much
To long for more :
A yearning for a deeper peace
Not known before.

I thank Thee, Lord, that here our souls,
Though amply blest,
Can never find, although they seek,
A perfect rest—
Nor ever shall, until they lean
On Jesus' breast.

Contentment.

SOME murmur, when their sky is clear
And wholly bright to view,
If one small speck of dark appear
In their great heaven of blue :
And some with thankful love are filled
If but one streak of light,
One ray of God's good mercy gild
The darkness of their night.

In palaces are hearts that ask,
In discontent and pride,
Why life is such a dreary task
And all good things denied?
And hearts in poorest huts admire
How love has in their aid
(Love that not ever seems to tire)
Such rich provision made.

Midnight Hymn.

IN the mid silence of the voiceless night,
When, chased by airy dreams, the slumbers flee.
Whom in the darkness doth my spirit seek,
O God, but Thee?

And if there be a weight upon my breast,
Some vague impression of the day foregone,
Scarce knowing what it is, I fly to Thee,
And lay it down.

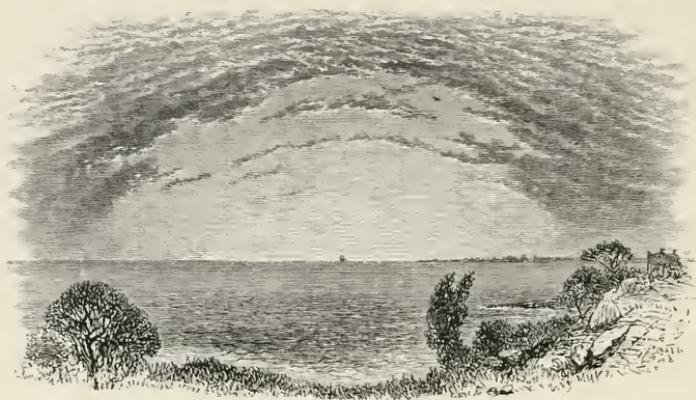

Or if it be the heaviness that comes
In token of anticipated ill—
My bosom takes no heed of what it is,
Since 'tis Thy will.

For oh! in spite of past and present care
Or anything beside—how joyfully
Passes that silent solitary hour,
My God, with Thee!

More tranquil than the stillness of the night,
More peaceful than the silence of that hour,
More blest than anything, my bosom lies
Beneath Thy power.

For what is there on earth that I desire,
Of all that it can give or take from me?
Or whom in heaven doth my spirit seek,
O God, but Thee?

Morning Hymn.

COME, my soul, awake, 'tis morning,
Day is dawning
O'er the earth, arise and pray.
Come to Him who made this splendour,
Thou must render
All thy feeble powers can pay.
From the stars now learn thy duty,
See their beauty
Paling in the golden air :
So God's light thy mists should banish,
Thus should vanish
What to darkened sense seemed fair.
See how everything that liveth
Gladly striveth
On the pleasant light to gaze ;
Stirs with joy each thing that groweth,
As it knoweth
Darkness smitten by these rays.
Soul, thy incense also proffer ;
Thou shouldst offer
Praise to Him, who from thy head
Kept afar the storms of sorrow,
And the morrow
Finds the night in peace hath fled.

Bid Him bless what thou art doing,
If pursuing
Some good end ! but if there lurks
Ill intent in thine endeavour,
May He ever
Thwart and turn thee from thy works.
Think that He, the All-discerning,
Knows each turning
Of thy path, each sinful stain ;
Nay, what shame would fain gloss over,
Can discover ;
All thou dost to Him is plain.
Bound unto the flying hours
Are our powers ;
Earth's vain good floats down their wave,
That thy ship, my soul, is hastening,
Never resting,
To its haven in the grave.
Pray that when thy life is closing,
Calm reposing,
Thou may'st die, and not in pain :
That, the night of death departed,
Thou, glad-hearted,
May'st behold the sun again

From God's glances shrink thou never,
 Meet them ever ;
 Who submits him to His grace,
 Finds that earth no sunshine knoweth
 Such as gloweth
 O'er his pathway all his days.

Wakenest thou again to sorrow,
 Oh ! then borrow Strength from Him, whose sun-light might
 On the mountain summit tarries,
 And yet carries
 To the vales their mirth and light.

Round the gifts He on thee showers,
 Fiery towers
 Will He set ; be not afraid,
 Thou shalt dwell 'mid angel legions,
 In the regions
 Satan's self dares not invade.

“Pray without ceasing.”

“And he spake a parable unto this end, that men ought always to pray and not to faint.”

WAS long ago in olden time,
 Christ spake a parable divine,
 To teach the waiting throng
 That men ought evermore to pray,
 And God would hear and help away,
 Although they waited long.

That human voice we may not hear,
 That music breaks not on our ear,
 Yet still the words are sure :
 And many hearts with grief oppressed,
 Have found them light, and hope, and rest,
 And trusted there secure.

And rises, Lord, this cry to Thee,
 From weary hearts unceasingly,
 “How long, O Lord, how long !
 O Thou the True, the Good, the Great,
 Have mercy on us desolate.
 Is not Thy sceptre strong?”

So pray they bowed with sorrow down ;
While we, whom love and gladness crown,
    Bend lower still in prayer,
With hearts so full we need to pray,
"O make us worthy, Lord, always
    This weight of love to bear.

"O help us 'mid these beams divine,
To think of Thee from whom they shine,
    By whom all love is given ;
To know them but reflections bright
Of glory true and infinite,
    Which floods the fields of heaven."

And thus, in happiness or care,
Still, Lord, to Thee ascends our prayer,
    For strength we cry from far :
And learn, as Jesus taught of old,
In toils and troubles manifold,
    To trust Thy guiding star.

So lead us, Thou to whom we pray,
That ever nearer day by day
    Unto the Christ we come ;
And where we see the star abide,
There—surely trusting in our Guide,
    May find our rest and home.

“Thy face, Lord, will I seek.”

HEARD the voice of Jesus say,
 “Come unto me and rest ;
 Lay down, poor weary one, lay down

Thy head upon my breast :”
 I came to Jesus as I was,
 Weary, and worn, and sad ;
 I found in Him a resting place,
 And He has made me glad.

I heard the voice of Jesus say,
 “Behold I freely give
 The living water, thirsty one.
 Stoop down, and drink, and live :”

I came to Jesus, and I drank
 Of that life-giving stream ;
 My thirst was quenched, my soul revived,
 And now I live in Him.

I heard the voice of Jesus say,
 “I am this dark world’s Light ;
 Look unto me, thy morn shall rise,
 And all thy day be bright :”
 I looked to Jesus, and I found
 In Him my radiant Sun ;
 So in the light of Light I live,
 And glory is begun !

When heart and flesh fail.

LOWLY and solemn be
 Thy children’s cry to Thee,
 Father divine !
 A hymn of suppliant breath,
 Owing that life and death
 Alike are Thine.

O Father, in that hour,
 When earth all succouring power
 Shall disavow ;
 When spear, and shield, and crown.
 In faintness are cast down ;
 Sustain us, Thou.

By Him who loved to take
 The death-cup for our sake,
 The thorn, the rod ;
 From whom the last dismay
 Was not to pass away ;
 Aid us, O God.

Tremblers beside the grave,
 We call on Thee to save,
 Father divine ;
 Hear, hear our suppliant breath,
 Keep us, in life and death,
 Thine, only Thine.

Joseph a type of Christ.

OLD by them that should have loved thee,
Prisoner in the heathen's land,
Given by him that best had proved thee
To the dungeon and the band :—
From the land of flowers and rain,
Borne to Egypt's dewless plain,
Leaving tent and pastoral dell,
And the sire that loved thee well,
And the airs on upland breezy,
Where the scented cedars grow,
For the servant's toil uneasy
And the captive's weary woe ;—

Out of grief to honour risen,
Winning rapture for thy pain,
And a palace for thy prison,
And a sceptre to thy chain ;—
Ruling with a gentle art,
Over many a grateful heart,
Melting with a brother's love
Those thine anguish could not move—
Wearing graciously thy glory
Through the land thy wisdom won—
How should Christians read thy story,
Aged Israel's favoured son ?

As the little sapling tender
Shows the great oak waving proud ;
As the cold lake burns with splendour
From the crimson sunset-cloud ;
So in sufferings of thine
Trace we out a gift divine,
And thy sorrows throb and glow
With a pulse of heavenly woe !
Type thou art of One more holy
Who His glory laid aside,
Took the form of servant lowly,
Stooped to suffering man, and died.

He was scorned, and sold, and hated
 By the men He came to save,
 With a cruel wrath unsated,
 Followed to His three days' grave,—
 Not one pitying thought for Him,
 When His failing eye waxed dim,
 Not one note in sympathy
 With that love so full and free,
 When His tender spirit, yearning,
 Wept those tears of God-like grief
 O'er the lawless city spurning
 Help, and safety, and relief.

Now He reigneth high exalted
 Where the white-robed elders stand,
 By the great throne rainbow-vaulted,
 Each with golden harp in hand.
 Thousand thousand harps adoring,
 Thousand thousand vials pouring

Odours sweet of saintly prayers,
 That embalm those heavenly airs,
 Round the Lamb once slain and wounded
 Breathing till that awful hour,
 When, by heaven's high host surrounded,
 He shall come again in power.

For behind each image saintly
 Burns the light of Jesus' name—
 As the lines lie dim and faintly
 In the Gothic window frame,
 Till the sunlight touch the pane
 Rising o'er the fretted fane,
 And each form and gorgeous hue
 Starts to sight distinct and true,
 So doth many a sin-stained creature
 Catch a glory from Christ's face,
 And a light is on his feature,
 That our eyes should love to trace.

"Glory to God in the highest."

GLORIOUS was that primeval light
Which poured its golden flood
O'er the young earth, when fresh and bright
In its first bloom it stood.

But, lo! another light, that shines
O'er Bethlehem's midnight sky,
On man with richer promise beams,
And lovelier scenes draw nigh.

Glad tidings of Immanuel's birth
The angelic heralds bring;
"Glory to God, and peace on earth,
Good will towards men," they sing.

Rise, then, my soul, and greet the morn,
Thus sung by hosts of heaven;
For unto us a Child is born,
To us a Son is given.

In Advent Hymn.

"Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord."
Matt. xxi. 9.

WHEN first our Lord came down on earth,
He did not scorn like us to be,
For He was born of mortal birth,
A simple child of low degree.

Where Syrian waves are bright and clear,
Where Judah's grapes grow large and red,
He walked below and men drew near
And heard the holy words He said.

But when the Lord shall come again,
With angel-hosts encircled round,
All earth and heaven shall hail Him then,
With thunder-peal and trumpet-sound.

And, some in joy and some in dread,
The sons of men His eye shall meet ;
For all the living and the dead
Must stand before His judgment-seat.

His voice on earth we did not hear,
His steps below we could not trace,
But when His glory shall appear,
We too shall meet Him face to face.

For surely as the leaves and flowers
In summer time come back again,
So surely, as in sultry hours
The dark clouds bring the pleasant rain,

Shall He, who in His lowly love
Came down that we might be forgiven,
Break, glorious, through the clouds above,
And take His children home to heaven.

For Christ's sake.

"I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named."—Eph. iii. 15.

T

HE quiet Sabbath sunshine played,
With soft and loving smile,
On those in lowly church who prayed,
And dim cathedral aisle.

There some in joy, in sorrow some,
Beneath that sunshine knelt ;
Each with his own request had come,
Each heart its burden felt.

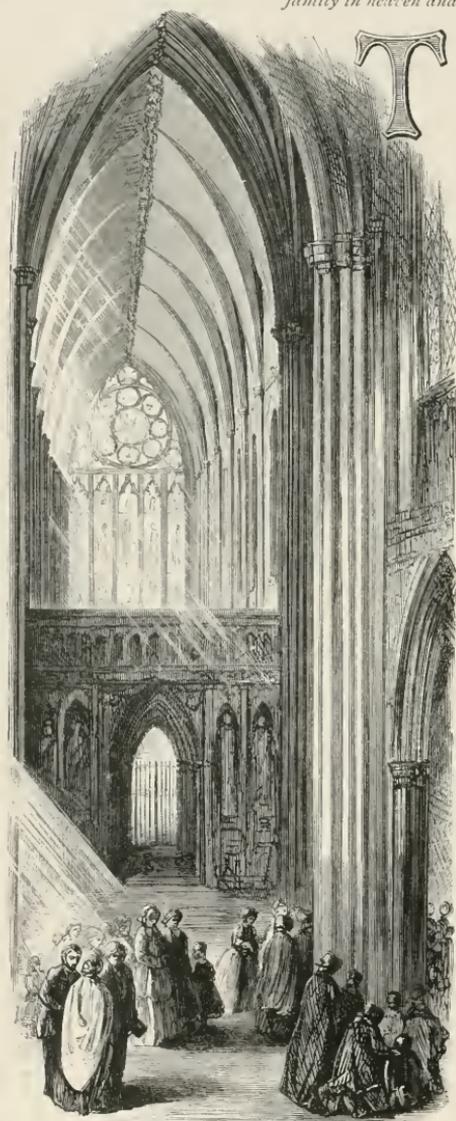

Yet named they all one sacred name,
And saw one presence fair ;
"For Christ our Saviour's sake,"—the name
To each far different prayer.

While every joy, and grief, and need,
Swelled one united cry,
Blending in Him whose name we plead,
Our advocate on high.

Until the soft "My God," which came
From every praying heart,
Rose but as one "Our Father,"—name
Which joins those far apart.

So ever, as we nearer rise
Towards Him we all would find,
We draw more closely still the ties
Which heart to heart can bind.

That like the union none may know,
Of Father and of Son,
We all who trust in Him below,
In Him may all be one.

Light shining out of darkness.

"Clouds and darkness are round about Him, righteousness and judgment are the habitation of His throne."—Psa. xcvi. 2.

FOD moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform ;
He plants His footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm.

Deep in unfathomable mines
Of never failing skill,
He treasures up His bright designs,
And works His sovereign will.

Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take ;
The clouds ye so much dread
Are big with mercy, and shall break
In blessings on your head.

Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust Him for His grace ;
Behind a frowning Providence
He hides a smiling face.

His purposes will ripen fast,
Unfolding every hour ;
The bud may have a bitter taste,
But sweet will be the flower.

Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan His work in vain ;
God is His own interpreter,
And He will make it plain.

Verse.

FOR the love of the true hearted,
Thanks we give Thee, Lord of love ;
Truest treasure Thou hast given,
Fairest link 'twixt earth and heaven,
Sunshine from above.

May this love that Thou hast given,
Light, and hope, and joy to be ;
Filling all our lives with meaning,
Teaching truest strength in leaning :
Draw us nearer Thee.

For the love Thou sendest shows us
How that stronger love must glow,
By its very depth revealing
Other depths of deeper feeling
God alone can know.

Teaching us of love unuttered,
Ever springing, ever new,
Whose unfathomed depth and beauty
Cheer our sorrows, gild our duty,
Perfect, constant, true.

Cooper's Grave.

It is a place where poets crowned may feel the heart's decaying ;
It is a place where happy saints may weep amid their praying ;
Yet let the grief and humbleness, as low as silence languish !
Earth surely now may give her calm to whom she gave her anguish.

O poets ! from a maniac's tongue was poured the deathless singing ;
O Christians ! at your cross of hope, a hopeless hand was clinging !
O men ! this man in brotherhood, your weary paths beguiling,
Groaned inly while he taught you peace, and died while you were smiling !

And now, what time ye all may read through dimming tears his story,
How discord on the music fell, and darkness on the glory,
And how, when one by one sweet sounds and wandering lights departed,
He wore no less a loving face because so broken-hearted ;

He shall be strong to sanctify the poet's high vocation,
 And bow the meekest Christian down in meeker adoration ;
 Nor ever shall he be, in praise, of wise or good forsaken ;
 Named softly as the household name of one whom God hath taken.

* * * * *

Like a sick child that knoweth not his mother while she blesses,
 And drops upon his burning brow the coolness of her kisses ;
 That turns his fevered eyes around—" My mother ! where's my mother ?"
 As if such tender words and looks could come from any other !—

The fever gone, with leaps of heart, he sees her bending o'er him ;
 Her face all pale from watchful love, the unwearied love she bore him !—
 Thus woke the poet from the dream the life-long fever gave him.
 Beneath those deep pathetic eyes, which closed in death to save him !—

Thus ! oh not thus ! no type of earth could image that awaking,
 Wherein he scarcely heard the chant of seraphs round him breaking,
 Or felt the new immortal throb of soul from body parted,
 But felt those eyes alone, and knew " my Saviour, not deserted !"

Deserted ! who hath dreamt that when the cross in darkness rested
 Upon the Victim's hidden face, no love was manifested ?
 What frantic hands outstretched have e'er the atoning drops averted ?
 What tears have washed them from the soul, that one should be deserted ?

Deserted ! God could separate from His own essence rather ;
 And Adam's sins have swept between the righteous Son and Father ;
 Yea, once Immanuel's orphan cry His universe hath shaken ;
 It went up single, echoless, " My God, I am forsaken !"

It went up from the Holy's lips amid His lost creation.
 That, of the lost, no son should use those words of desolation ;
 That earth's worst phrenzies, marring hope, should mar not hope's fruition,
 And I on Cowper's grave might see his rapture in a vision.

The Death of the Sagamore.

HE servant of God is on his way
From Boston's beautiful shore ;
The boat skims light o'er the silvery bay,
The sleeping waters awake and play
At the touch of the splashing oar.

The boat is fast, and over the sod
Of the neighbouring wood he hies,
Through moor and thicket his path is trod,
For he hastens to speak of the living God
In the ear of the man who dies.

The purpose that fills his soul is great
As the heart of man may know ;
Vast as eternity, strong as the gate
Which the spirit must pass to a changeless state,
To enter on bliss or woe.

Where Romney's forest is high and dark
The eagle lowers her wing
O'er him who once had made her his mark,
For the Sagamore, on his bed of bark,
Is a perishing, powerless thing.

On the door of the wigwam hang the bow
The antlers and beavers' skin,
But he who bore them is faint and low,
For death has given the fatal blow,
And a monarch expires within.

The eye that glanced, and the eagle fled
Away to the fields of air ;
The hand that drew, and the deer was dead ;
The hunter's foot, and the chieftain's tread,
And the conqueror's arm are there.

But each his powerful work has done,
His triumph at length is past ;
The final conflict is now begun,
And weeping the mother hangs over her son,
As the Sagamore breathes his last.

The queen of Massachusetts grieves
That the life of her child must end ;
And that is a noble heart which heaves,
With a mortal pang, on the bed of leaves
Of the white man's Indian friend.

That stately form that lies prostrate there,
On those feet that are cold as snow,
Hath often sped through the midnight air,
A word to the Christian's ear to bear,
Of the plot of his heathen foe.

And often, while roaming those wilds alone,
His generous heart would melt,
At the touch of a ray of light which shone
From the white man's God, till before His throne
Almost has the Indian knelt.

But the fatal fear, the fear of man,
That brings to man a snare,
Has braced his knee, as it just began
To bend ; and the fear of a heathen clan
Has stifled the Christian's prayer.

But now, like a flood to his trembling heart,
Has the fear of a God rushed in ;
And keener far than the icy dart,
That rends the flesh and spirit apart,
Is the thought of his heathen sin.

To the lonely tent where the chief reclines,
As the herald of love draws nigh,
The Indian shrinks as he marks the signs
Of a soul at peace, and the light which shines
Alone from the Christian's eye.

"Alas !" he cries, in the strange deep tone
Of one in the grasp of death,
"No God have I, I have lost my own,
And I go to the presence of thine alone,
To scorch in His fiery breath.

“That Spirit who made the sky so bright,
 With the touch of His shining feet,
 Who rules the waters, enkindles the light,
 Imprisons the winds and gives them their flight,
 I tremble His eye to meet.

“When oh, if I openly had confessed,
 And followed and loved Him here.
 I now might fly to His arms for rest,
 Like a weary bird to her downy nest.
 When the evening shades draw near.

“But grant me this one great boon I crave
 In a dread and an awful hour—
 When I am gone to my lonely grave,
 Oh take my son to thy home, and save
 This beautiful forest flower.

“To the God of thy people, the Holy One,
 To the path that shall reach the skies;
 Say, say, that to these thou wilt lead my son,
 That he may not second the race I have run,
 Nor die as his father dies.”

“As his father dies.”—With the breath that bore
 That sorrowful sound, hath fled
 The soul of a king, for the strife is o'er
 Of the spirit and flesh, and the Sagamore
 Is numbered with the dead.

But hath he not, by his high bequest,
 Like the penitent on the tree,
 The Saviour of dying man confessed,
 And found the promise to him address,
 “To-day shalt be with Me”?

The Lord is mindful of His own.

GOD doth not leave His own :
 The night of weeping for a time may last,
 Then, tears all past,
 His going forth shall as the morning shine,
 The sunrise of His favour shall be thine :
 God doth not leave His own.

God doth not leave His own ;
 Though few and evil all their days appear,
 Though grief and fear
 Come in the train of earth and hell's dark crowd,
 The trusting heart says, even in the cloud,
 God doth not leave His own.

God doth not leave His own :
 This sorrow in their life He doth permit,
 Yea, chooseth it,
 To speed His children on their heavenward way,
 He guides the winds.—Faith, hope, and love all say
 God doth not leave His own.

Forgiven.

KIND hearts are here, yet would the tenderest one
 Have limits to its mercy, God has none ;
 But man's forgiveness may be true and sweet,
 But yet he stoops to give it ; more complete
 Is love that lays forgiveness at thy feet
 And pleads with thee to raise it ; only heaven
 Means crowned, not vanquished, when it says
 " Forgiven."

Unto us a Son is born.

HAIL to the Lord's anointed !
 Great David's greater Son !
 Hail, in the time appointed,
 His reign on earth begun !
 He comes to break oppression,
 To set the captive free ;
 To take away transgression,
 And rule in equity.

He comes with succour speedy
 For those who suffer wrong ;
 To help the poor and needy,
 And bid the weak be strong ;
 To give them songs for sighing,
 Their darkness turn to light,
 Whose souls, condemned and dying,
 Were precious in His sight.

By such shall He be feared
 While sun and moon endure,
 Beloved, obeyed, revered,
 For He shall judge the poor,
 Through changing generations,
 With justice, mercy, truth,
 While stars maintain their stations,
 Or moons renew their youth.

He shall come down like showers
 Upon the fruitful earth ;
 And love, joy, hope, like flowers,
 Spring in His path to birth.
 Before Him, on the mountains,
 Shall Peace, the herald go ;
 And righteousness, in fountains,
 From hill to valley flow.

Arabia's desert ranger
 To Him shall bow the knee ;
 The Ethiopian stranger
 His glory come to see :
 With offerings of devotion,
 Ships from the isles shall meet,
 To pour the wealth of ocean
 In tribute at His feet.

Kings shall fall down before Him
 And gold and incense bring ;
 All nations shall adore Him,
 His praise all people sing :
 For He shall have dominion
 O'er river, sea, and shore,
 Far as the eagle's pinion
 Or dove's light wing can soar.

To Him shall prayer unceasing
 And daily vows ascend ;
 His wisdom still increasing,—
 A kingdom without end.
 The mountain-dew shall nourish
 A seed in weakness sown,
 Whose fruit shall spread and flourish,
 And shake like Lebanon.

O'er every foe victorious,
 He on His throne shall rest ;
 From age to age more glorious,
 All blessing and all blest.
 The tide of time shall never
 His covenant remove :
 His name shall stand for ever ;
 His new, best name of Love.

Walk in the Light.

WALK in the light—and thou shalt own
 Thy darkness past away,
 Because on thee the light hath shone
 In which is perfect day.

Walk in the light—and sin abhorred
 Shall not defile again ;
 The blood of Jesus Christ the Lord
 Shall cleanse from every stain.

Walk in the light—and thou shalt find
 Thy heart made truly His,
 Who dwells in cloudless light enshrined ;
 In whom no darkness is.

Walk in the light—so shalt thou know
 That fellowship of love
 His Spirit only can bestow
 Who reigns in light above.

Walk in the light—and follow on
 Till faith be turned to sight,
 Where, in divine communion,
 God is Himself the light.

Adoration.

ALWAY imploring palms we raise towards heaven
 As though we drew the consecration down :
 And miss the holy wells that gush hard by.
 So men mistakenly look up for dew,
 The while its blessed mist imbathes their feet.
 Therefore if any flower shall breathe for thee
 A fragrant message from its pencilled urn ;
 If spring airs glad thee ; if the sunset bring
 Into thine eyes the tears of solemn joy ;
 If any radiant passion come to make
 Existence beautiful and pure to thee ;

If noblest music sway thee, like a dream ;
 If sorrow to a mournful midnight turn
 Thy noon ; if something deepest in thee wake
 To a dim sentiment of mystery ;
 If musing warm to worship ; if the stars
 Earnestly beckon to immortal life ;
 Ponder such ministrations, and be sure
 Thou hast been touched by God, O human heart.

God in everything.

"The day is Thine, the night also is Thine : Thou hast prepared the light and the sun."—Psa. lxxiv. 16.

THOU art, O God, the life and light
 Of all this wondrous world we see ;
 Its glow by day, its smile by night,
 Are but reflections caught from Thee ;
 Where'er we turn, Thy glories shine,
 And all things fair and bright are Thine.

When day, with farewell beam, delays
 Among the opening clouds of even,
 And we can almost think we gaze
 Through golden vistas into heaven,
 Those hues that mark the sun's decline,
 So soft, so radiant, Lord, are Thine.

When youthful spring around us breathes,
 Thy spirit warms her fragrant sigh,
 And every flower the summer wreathes
 Is born beneath that kindling eye,—
 Where'er we turn, Thy glories shine.
 And all things fair and bright are Thine.

“Freely ye have received, freely give.”

GIVE! as the morning that flows out of heaven,
Give! as the waves when their channel is riven,
Give! as the free air and sunshine are given,

Lavishly, utterly, carelessly give :
Not the waste drops of thy cup overflowing,
Not the faint sparks of thy hearth ever glowing,
Not a pale bud from thy June roses blowing,—
Give as He gave thee who gave thee to live.

Pour out thy love like the rush of a river
Wasting its waters for ever and ever,
Through the burnt sands that reward not the giver,
Silent or songful thou nearest the sea.

Scatter thy life as the summer-showers pouring ;
What if no bird through the pearl-rain is soaring !
What if no blossom look upward adoring !
Look to the life that was lavished for thee.

Give! though thy heart be all wasted and weary ;
Laid on an altar all ashy and dreary ;
Though from its pulses a faint miserere

Beats to thy soul the sad presage of fate ;
Bind it with cords of unshrinking devotion ;
Smile at the song of its trembling emotion ;
’Tis the stern hymn of eternity’s ocean ;

Hear! and thy future in silence await.

So the wild wind spreads its perfumed caresses,
Evil and thankless the desert it blesses ;
Bitter the wave that its soft pinion presses.

Never it ceaseth to whisper and sing.
What if the hard heart give thorns for thy roses !
What if on rocks thy tired bosom reposes !
Sweeter is music with minor-keyed closes.

Fairest the vines that on ruins will cling.

Almost the day of thy giving is over ;
 Ere from the grass dies the bee-haunted clover
 Thou wilt have vanished from friend and from lover :
 What shall thy longing avail in the grave ?
 Give ! as the heart gives whose fetters are breaking,
 Life, love, and hope, all thy dreams and thy waking,
 Soon heaven's river thy soul-fever slaking,
 Thou shalt know God and the gift that He gave.

Redeemed.

"There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."—Luke xv. 10.

REDEEMED, redeemed,
 The word went forth from the Father's throne
 And a flood of light from His blessed Son
 Upon the suppliant streamed ;
 And the angel-host, with one accord,
 Sent forth a shout and song,
 For another soul by their blessed Lord
 Was promised to their throng.

Forgiven, forgiven,
 The words went up as the thunder's roll,
 And on the humble, trembling soul
 The echoes fell from heaven ;

And the angels touched the silver strings
 Of their harps and caught the
 word,
 Veiled their glad faces with their wings,
 And bowed before the Lord.

Rejoice, rejoice,
 Great was the sound of joy above,
 And brighter seemed the realms of love,
 Sweeter the angels' voice,
 And all because one weary heart
 Had courage to be blest,
 Had taken up the better part,
 And bathed its wings in rest.

Here and There.

WHAT no human eye hath seen,
 What no mortal ear hath heard,
 What on thought hath never been
 In its noblest flights conferred—
 This hath God prepared in store
 For His people evermore.

When the shaded pilgrim land
 Fades before my closing eye,
 Then revealed on either hand
 Heaven's own scenery shall lie :
 Then the veil of flesh shall fall.
 Now concealing, darkening all.

Heavenly landscapes, calmly bright,
 Life's pure river murmuring low,
 Forms of loveliness and light,
 Lost to earth long time ago,—
 Yes, mine own, lamented long,
 Shine amid the angel throng !

Many a joyful sight was given,
 Many a lovely vision here,
 Hill, and vale, and starry even,
 Friendship's smile, affection's tear,
 These were shadows, sent in love,
 Of realities above !

When upon my wearied ear
 Earth's last echoes faintly die ;
 Then shall angel-harps draw near,
 All the chorus of the sky ;
 Long-hushed voices blend again,
 Sweetly in that welcome strain.

Here were sweet and varied tones,
 Bird, and breeze, and fountain's fall,
 Yet creation's travail-groans
 Ever sadly sighed through all ;
 There no discord jars the air,
 Harmony is perfect there.

When this aching heart shall rest,
 All its busy pulses o'er,
 From its mortal robes undrest
 Shall my spirit upward soar.
 Then shall unimagined joy,
 All my thoughts and powers employ.

Here devotion's healing balm
 Often came to soothe my breast,
 Hours of deep and holy calm,
 Earnests of eternal rest.
 But the bliss was here unknown,
 Which shall there be all my own !

Jesus reigns, the Life, the Sun,
 Of that wondrous world above ;
 All the clouds and storms are gone,
 All is light and all is love.
 All the shadows melt away
 In the blaze of perfect day !

A Voice from Heaven.

SHINE in the light of God,
His likeness stamps my brow,
Through the shadows of death my feet have trod
And I reign in glory now !

No breaking heart is here,
No keen and thrilling pain,
No wasted cheek, where the frequent tear
Hath rolled and left its stain.

I have found the joys of heaven,
I am one of the angel-band ;
To my head a crown of gold is given,
And a harp is in my hand !

I have learnt the song they sing
Whom Jesus hath set free ;
And the glorious walls of heaven still ring
With my new-born melody.

No sin, no grief, no pain,
Safe in my happy home !
My fears all fled, my doubts all slain,
My hour of triumph come.

O friends of mortal years,
The trusted and the true !
Ye are walking still in the vale of tears,
But I wait to welcome you.

Do I forget !—Oh no !
For memory's golden chain
Shall bind my heart to the hearts below
Till they meet to touch again.

Each link is strong and bright,
And love's electric flame
Flows freely down, like a river of light,
To the world from which I came.

Do you mourn when another star
 Shines out from a glittering sky?
 Do you weep when the raging voice of war
 And the storms of conflict die?

Then why should your tears run down,
 And your hearts be sorely riven,
 For another gem in the Saviour's crown,
 Another soul in heaven?

God's Acre.

LIKE that ancient Saxon phrase, which calls
 The burial ground God's Acre! It is just!
 It consecrates each grave within its walls,
 And breathes a benison o'er the sleeping dust.

God's Acre! Yes, that blessed name imparts
 Comfort to those who in the grave have sown
 The seed that they have garnered in their hearts,
 Their bread of life; alas! no more their own.

Into its furrows shall we all be cast,
 In the sure faith that we shall rise again
 At the great harvest, when the archangel's blast
 Shall winnow, like a fan, the chaff and grain.

Then shall the good stand in immortal bloom,
 In the fair gardens of that second birth ;
 And each bright blossom mingle its perfume
 With that of flowers which never bloomed on earth.

With thy rude ploughshare, Death, turn up the sod,
 And spread the furrow for the seed we sow ;
 This is the field and acre of our God,
 This is the place where human harvests grow !

The Dream.

DEARIED and worn with earthly cares, I yielded to repose,
 And soon, before my raptured sight, a glorious vision rose :
 I thought, whilst slumbering on my couch in midnight's solemn gloom,
 I heard an angel's silvery voice, and radiance filled the room.

A gentle touch awakened me,—a gentle whisper said,
 "Arise, O sleeper, follow me ;" and through the air we fled.
 We left the earth so far away that like a speck it seemed,
 And heavenly glory, calm and pure, across our pathway streamed.

Still on we went,—my soul was wrapped in silent ecstasy ;
 I wondered what the end would be, what next should meet mine eye.
 I know not how we journeyed through the pathless fields of light.
 When suddenly a change was wrought, and I was clothed in white.

We stood before a city's walls, most glorious to behold ;
 We passed through gates of glistening pearl, o'er streets of purest gold ;
 It needed not the sun by day, the silver moon by night ;
 The glory of the Lord was there, the Lamb Himself its light.

Bright angels paced the shining streets, sweet music filled the air,
 And white-robed saints, with glittering crowns, from every clime were there !

And some that I had loved on earth stood with them round the throne,
 "All worthy is the Lamb," they sang, "the glory His alone."

But fairer far than all beside, I saw my Saviour's face ;
 And as I gazed, He smiled on me with wondrous love and grace.
 Lowly I bowed before His throne, o'erjoyed that I at last
 Had gained the object of my hopes, that earth at length was past.

And then, in solemn tones, He said, "Where is the diadem
 That should be sparkling on thy brow, adorned with many a gem ?
 I know thou hast believed on Me, and life through Me is thine ;
 But where are all those radiant stars that in thy crown should shine ?

"Thou seest now yonder glorious throng, the stars on every brow !
 For every soul they led to Me, they wear a jewel now !
 And such thy bright reward had been, if such had been thy deed,
 If thou hadst sought some wandering feet in path of peace to lead.

"I did not mean that thou shouldst tread the way of life, alone,
 But that the clear and shining light, which round thy footsteps shone,
 Should guide some other weary feet to my bright home of rest,
 And thus, in blessing those around, thou hadst thyself been blest."

* * * * *

The vision faded from my sight, the voice no longer spake,
 A spell seemed brooding o'er my soul, which long I feared to break ;
 And when at last I gazed around in morning's glimmering light,
 My spirit fell o'erwhelmed beneath that vision's awful night.

I rose and wept with chastened joy, that yet I dwelt below ;
 That yet another hour was mine, my faith by works to show ;
 That yet some sinner I might tell of Jesus' dying love,
 And help to lead some weary soul to seek a home above.

And now, while on the earth I stay, my motto this shall be,
 "To live no longer to myself, but Him who died for me ;"
 And graven on my inmost soul this word of truth divine,
 "They that turn many to the Lord bright as the stars shall shine."

---

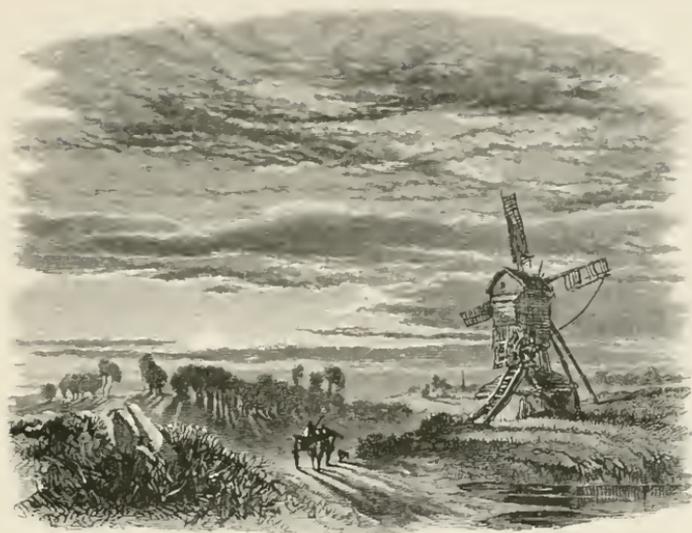

Bless us to-night.

FATHER of love and power,
 Guard Thou our evening-hour,
 Shield with Thy might.
 For all Thy care this day
 Our grateful thanks we pay,
 And to our Father pray.
 Bless us to-night.

Jesus Emmanuel,
 Come in Thy love to dwell
 In hearts contrite ;
 For many sins we grieve,
 But we Thy grace receive,
 And in Thy word believe,
 Bless us to-night.

Spirit of truth and love,
 Life-giving holy Dove,
 Shed forth Thy light ;
 Heal every sinner's smart,
 Still every throbbing heart,
 And Thine own peace impart,
 Bless us to-night.

Sleep.

WHEN in the silvery moonlight
 The lengthened shadows fall,
 And the silence of night is dropping
 Like gentle dew on all :

When the river's tranquil murmur
 Doth lulling cadence keep,
 And blossoms close their weary eyes,
 He giveth all things sleep.

From the litle bud of the daisy,
 And the young bird in the nest,
 To the humble bed of a peasant-child,
 All share that quiet rest.

It comes to the poor man's garret,
 And the captive's lonely cell :
 On the sick man's tossing, feverish
 couch,
 It lays a blessed spell.

And the Holy One who sends it down,
 For a healing and a balm,
 Doth bless it with a mighty power
 Of peacefulness and calm.

He counts the buds that fade and droop,
 And marks all those who weep ;
 And closes weary, aching eyes,
 With the holy kiss of sleep :

The truest comfort He has given
 For all earth's pain and woe,
 Until that glorious life beyond
 Nor tears nor sleep shall know.

A Psalm of Life.

TELL me not, in mournful numbers,
 Life is but an empty dream ;
 For the soul is dead that slumbers,
 And things are not what they seem.

Life is real ! life is earnest !
 And the grave is not its goal ;
 "Dust thou art, to dust returnest."
 Was not spoken of the soul.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
 Is our destined end or way ;
 But to act, that each to-morrow
 Find us further than to-day.

Art is long and time is fleeting,
 And our hearts, though stout and brave,
 Still like muffled drums are beating
 Funeral marches to the grave.

In the world's broad field of battle,
 In the bivouac of life,
 Be not like dumb, driven cattle !
 Be a hero in the strife !

Trust no future, howe'er pleasant !
 Let the dead past bury its dead !
 Act,—act in the living present !
 Heart within, and God o'erhead !

Lives of great men all remind us
 We can make our lives sublime,
 And, departing, leave behind us
 Footprints on the sands of time.

Footprints that perhaps another,
 Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
 A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
 Seeing, shall take heart again.

Let us, then, be up and doing,
 With a heart for any fate ;
 Still achieving, still pursuing,
 Learn to labour and to wait.

The Hours.

THE hours are viewless angels,
 That still go gliding by,
 And bear each minute's record up
 To Him who sits on high ;
 And we, who walk among them,
 As one by one departs,
 See not that they are hovering
 For ever round our hearts.

Like summer-bees that hover
 Around the idle flowers,
 They gather every act and thought,
 Those viewless angel-hours ;
 The poison or the nectar
 The heart's deep flowercups yield,
 A sample still they gather swift
 And leave us in the field.

And some flit by on pinions
 Of joyous gold-and-blue,
 And some flag on with drooping wings
 Of sorrow's darker hue ;
 But still they steal the record,
 And bear it far away ;
 Their mission-flight, by day or night,
 No magic power can stay.

And as we spend each minute
 That God to us hath given,
 The deeds are known before His
 throne,
 The tale is told in heaven.
 Those bee-like hours we see not,
 Nor hear their noiseless wings ;
 We often feel, too oft, when flown,
 That they have left their stings.

So teach me, heavenly Father,
 To meet each flying hour,
 That as they go they may not show
 My heart a poison flower !
 So when death brings its shadows,
 The hours that linger last
 Shall bear my hopes on angel wings,
 Unfettered by the past.

Silence.

IN silence mighty things are wrought—
Silently builded, thought on thought,
Truth's temple greets the sky ;
And like a citadel with towers,
The soul, with her subservient powers,
Is strengthened silently.

Soundless as chariots on the snow
The saplings of the forest grow
To trees of mighty girth ;
Each nightly star in silence burns,
And every day in silence turns
The axle of the earth.

The silent frost, with mighty hand,
Fetters the rivers and the land
With universal chain ;
And smitten by the silent sun,
The chain is loosed, the rivers run,
The lands are free again.

O Source unseen of life and light,
Thy secrecy of silent might
If we in bondage know,
Our hearts, like seeds beneath the ground,
By silent force of life unbound,
Move upward from below.

Open Thou our eyes.

"Jesus Himself drew near, and went with them."—Luke xxiv. 15.

AND He drew near and talked with them,
 But they perceived Him not,
 And mourned, unconscious of that light—
 The gloom, the darkness, and the night
 That wrapt His burial-spot.

Wearied with doubt, perplexed, and sad,
 They knew nor help, nor guide,
 While He who bore the secret key
 To open every mystery,
 Unknown was by their side.

Thus often when we feel alone,
 Nor help nor comfort near,
 'Tis only that our eyes are dim,
 Doubting and sad we see not Him
 Who waiteth still to hear.

"The darkness gathers overhead,
 The morn will never come."
 Did we but raise our downcast eyes,
 In the white-flushing eastern skies
 Appears the glowing sun.

In all our daily joys and griefs,
 In daily work and rest,
 To those who seek Him, Christ is near,
 Our bliss to calm, to soothe our care,
 In leaning on His breast.

Open our eyes, O Lord, we pray,
 To see our way—our Guide,
 That by the path that here we tread,
 We, following on, may still be led
 In Thy light to abide.

Discouraged because of the way.

WHE way seems dark about me—overhead
 The clouds have long since met in gloomy spread,
 And, when I looked to see the day break through,
 Cloud after cloud came up with volume new.

And in that shadow I have passed along
 Feeling myself grow weak as it grew strong,
 Walking in doubt, and searching for the way,
 And often at a stand—as now to-day.

And if before me on the path there lies
 A spot of brightness from imagined skies,
 Imagined shadows fall across it too,
 And the far future takes the present's hue.

Perplexities do throng upon my sight,
Like scudding fog-banks, to obscure the light ;
Some new dilemma rises every day,
And I can only shut my eyes and pray.

Lord, I am not sufficient for these things,
Give me the light that Thy sweet presence brings ;
Give me Thy grace, give me Thy constant strength ;
Lord, for my comfort now appear at length.

It may be that my way doth seem confused,
Because my heart of Thy way is afraid ;
Because my eyes have constantly refused
To see the only opening Thou hast made.

Because my will would cross some flowery plain
Where Thou hast thrown a hedge from side to side ;
And turneth from the stony walk of pain,
Its trouble or its ease not even tried.

If thus I try to force my way along—
The smoothest road encumbered is for me ;
For were I as an angel, swift and strong,
I could not go unless allowed by Thee.

And now I pray Thee, Lord, to lead Thy child—
Poor wretched wanderer from Thy grace and love ;
Whatever way Thou pleasest through the wild,
So it but take her to Thy home above.

"When I am weak, then am I strong."

ALF feeling our own weakness
We place our hands in Thine,—
Knowing but half our darkness
We ask for light divine.

Then, when Thy strong arm holds us,
Our weakness most we feel,
And Thy love-light around us,
Our darkness doth reveal.

Too oft, when faithless doubtings
Around our spirits press,
We cry, "Can hands so feeble
Grasp such almightiness?"

While thus we doubt and tremble,
Our hold still looser grows;
While on our darkness gazing
Vainly Thy radiance glows.

Oh cheer us with Thy brightness,
And guide us by Thy hand,
In Thy light teach us light to see,
In Thy strength strong to stand.

Then though our hands be feeble,
If they but touch Thine arm,
Thy light and power shall lead us
And keep us strong and calm.

Rock of Ages.

ROCK of ages, cleft for me,
 Let me hide myself in Thee.
 Let the water and the blood,
 From Thy wounded side
 which flowed,
 Be of sin the double cure,
 Cleanse me from its guilt and power.

Not the labour of my hands
 Can fulfil Thy law's demands.
 Could my zeal no respite know,
 Could my tears for ever flow,
 All for sin could not atone ;
 Thou must save, and Thou alone.

Nothing in my hand I bring,
 Simply to Thy cross I cling ;
 Naked, come to Thee for dress ;
 Helpless, look to Thee for grace ;
 Black, I to the fountain fly ;
 Wash me, Saviour, or I die.

While I draw this fleeting breath,
 When my eyelids close in death,
 When I soar to worlds unknown,
 See Thee on Thy judgment-throne,
 Rock of ages, shelter me,
 Let me hide myself in Thee.

Faith in Christ.

Y faith looks up to Thee,
 Thou Lamb of Calvary,
 Saviour divine.
 Now hear me while I pray,
 Take all my guilt away,
 Oh let me from this day
 Be wholly Thine.

May Thy rich grace impart
 Strength to my fainting heart,
 My zeal inspire ;
 As Thou hast died for me,
 Oh may my love to Thee
 Pure, warm and changeless be,
 A living fire.

While life's dark maze I tread,
 And griefs around me spread,
 Be Thou my guide,
 Bid darkness turn to day,
 Wipe sorrow's tears away,
 Nor let me ever stray
 From Thee aside.

When ends life's transient dream,
 When death's cold sullen stream
 Shall o'er me roll ;
 Dear Saviour, then in love
 Fear and distrust remove,
 And bear me safe above,
 A ransomed soul.

Look to Jesus.

ESUS in Thy memory keep,
 Wouldst thou be God's child and friend ;
 Jesus in thy heart shined deep,
 Still thy gaze on Jesus bend,
 In thy toiling, in thy resting.
 Look to Him with every breath,
 Look to Jesus' life and death.

Look to Jesus till, reviving,
 Faith and love thy life-springs swell,
 Strength for all things good deriving
 From Him who did all things well :
 Work, as He did, in thy season,
 Works which shall not fade away,
 Work while it is called to-day.

Look to Jesus, prayerful, waking,
 When thy feet on roses tread ;
 Follow, worldly pomp forsaking,
 With thy cross where He hath led.

Look to Jesus in temptation ;
 Baffled shall the tempter flee,
 And God's angels come to thee.

Look to Jesus when dark lowering
 Perils thy horizon dim,
 By that band in terror cowering,
 Calm midst tempests, look to Him.
 Trust in Him who still rebuketh
 Wind and billow, fire and flood ;
 Forward ! brave by trusting God.

Look to Jesus when distressèd,
 See what He, the Holy, bore ;
 Is thy heart with conflict pressèd ?
 Is thy soul still harassed sore ?
 See His sweat of blood, His conflict,
 Watch His agony increase,
 Hear His prayer, and feel His peace !

Jesus.

HERE is a name I love to hear,
 I love to speak its worth ;
 It sounds like music in mine ear,
 The sweetest name on earth.

It tells me of a Saviour's love,
 Who died to set me free ;
 It tells me of His precious blood :
 The sinner's perfect plea.

It tells me of a Father's smile
 Beaming upon His child ;
 It cheers me through this "little while,"
 Through desert, waste, and wild.

It tells me what my Father hath
 In store for every day,
 And though I tread a darksome path,
 Yields sunshine all the way.

It tells of One whose loving heart
 Can feel my deepest woe,
 Who in my sorrow bears a part,
 That none can bear below.

It bids my trembling soul rejoice,
 It dries each rising tear !
 It tells me, in a "still small voice,"
 To trust, and not to fear.

Jesus ! the name I love so well,
 The name I love to hear !
 No saint on earth its worth can tell,
 No heart conceive how dear.

This name shall shed its fragrance still
 Along this thorny road :
 Shall sweetly smooth the rugged hill
 That leads me up to God.

And there, with all the blood-bought throng,
 From sin and sorrow free,
 I'll sing the new eternal song
 Of Jesus' love for me.

A City that hath foundations.

BEYOND the dark and stormy bound
 That guards our dull horizon round,
 A lovelier landscape swells ;
 Resplendent seat of light and peace,
 In thee the sounds of conflict cease,
 And glory ever dwells.

For thee the early patriarch sighed,
 Thy distant beauty faint descried,
 And hailed the blest abode ;
 A stranger here, he sought a home
 Fixed in a city yet to come,
 The city of his God.

Oft by Siloa's sacred stream,
 In heavenly trance and raptured dream,
 To faithful Israel shewn,
 Triumphant over all our foes,
 The true celestial Salem rose,
 Jehovah's promised throne.

We too, O Lord, would seek that land,
 Follow the tribes that crowd its strand,
 From every peril saved ;
 And wake as when, in elder time,
 Were marshalled all Thy hosts sublime,
 And high Thy banner waved.

Sabbath.

AFTER long days of storm and showers,
 Of sighing winds and dripping bowers,
 How sweet at morn to ope our eyes
 On newly swept and garnished skies.

To miss the cloud and driving rain,
 And see that all is bright again,
 So bright we cannot choose but say,
 "Is this the world of yesterday?"

E'en so, methinks, the Sabbath brings
 A change o'er all familiar things ;
 A change we know not whence it came,
 They are, and they are not the same.

There is a spell within, around,
On eye and ear, on sight and sound,
And, loth or willing, they and we Must own this day a mystery.

Sure all things wear a heavenly dress,
Which sanctifies their loveliness ;
Types of that endless resting-day,
When we shall all be changed as they.

To-day our peaceful, ordered home,
Foreshadoweth mansions yet to come,
We foretaste, in domestic love,
The faultless charities above.

And as, at yester-eventide,
Our tasks and toys were laid aside,
So here, we're training for the day
When we shall lay them down for aye.

But not alone for musing deep,
Our souls this "day of days" would keep.
Yet other glorious things than these,
The Christian in his sabbath sees.

His eyes by faith his Lord behold,
How on the week's "first day" of old
From hell He rose, on earth He trod,
Was seen of men, and went to God.

And as we fondly pause to look,
When in some daily-handled book,
Approval's well-known tokens stand,
Traced by some dear and thoughtful hand ;

E'en so there shines one day in seven,
Bright with the special mark of heaven,
That we with love and praise may dwell
On Him who loveth us so well.

Whether in meditative walk
Alone with God and heaven we talk,
Catching the simple chime which calls
Our feet to some old church's walls,—

Or, passed within the church's door,
Where poor are rich, and rich are poor,
We pray the prayers, and hear the word,
Which there our fathers prayed and heard.

Or represent in solemn wise,
Our all-prevailing Sacrifice,
Feeding in communion high
The life of faith which cannot die.

And surely, in a world like this,
So rife with woe, so scant of bliss,
Where fondest hopes are often crossed,
And fondest hearts are severed most,—

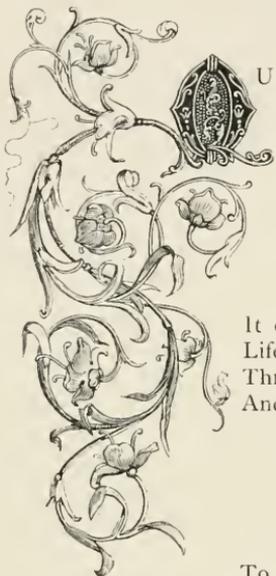

'Tis something that we kneel and pray,
With loved ones near and far away,
One God, one faith, one hope, one care,
One form of words, one hour of prayer.

'Tis past, yet pause till ear and heart,
In one brief silence ere we part,
Something of that high strain have caught
The peace of God which passeth aught.

Then turn we to our earthly homes,
Not doubting but that Jesus comes,
Breathing his peace on hall and hut,
"At even when the doors are shut,"—

Then speeds us on our earthly way,
And hallows every common day,
Without Him Sunday's self were dim,
And all are bright if spent with Him.

Quiet from God.

QUIET from God, it cometh not to still
 The vast and high aspirings of the soul,
 The deep emotions that the spirit fill,
 And speed its purpose onward to the goal.
 It dims not youth's bright eye,
 Bends not joy's lofty brow ;
 No guileless ecstacy
 Need in its presence bow.

It comes not in a sullen form to place
 Life's greatest good in an inglorious rest,
 Through a dull beaten track its way to trace,
 And to lethargic slumber lulls the breast.
 Action may be its sphere,
 Mountain paths, boundless fields,
 O'er billows its career ;
 This is the strength it yields.

To sojourn in the world and yet apart,
 To dwell with God, and yet with man to feel,
 To bear about for ever in the heart
 The gladness that His Spirit doth reveal.
 Not to deem evil gone
 From every earthly scene,
 To see the storm come on,
 But feel His shield between.

It giveth not a power to human kind
 To lay all suffering powerless at His feet,
 But keeps within the temple of the mind
 A golden altar and a mercy seat,
 A spiritual ark,
 Bearing the peace of God
 Above the waters dark
 And o'er the desert-sod.

How beautiful within our souls to keep
This treasure the All-merciful hath given,
To feel, when we awake and when we sleep,
Its incense round us like a breath from heaven.
    Quiet at heart and home,
    Where the heart's joys begin,
    Quiet where'er we roam,
    Quiet around, within.

What shall make trouble? not the adverse minds
That like a shadow o'er creation lower,
The spirit peace hath so attuned, finds
There feelings that may own the Calmer's power.
    What may she not confer,
    E'en whilst she must condemn?
    They take not peace from her,
    She may speak peace to them.

What shall make trouble? not an adverse fate,
Not chilling poverty or worldly care,
They who are tending to a better state
Want but that peace to make them feel they are ;
    Care o'er life's little day
    The tempest-clouds may roll,
    Peace o'er its eve shall play,
    The moonlight of the soul.

What shall make trouble? not the holy thought
Of the departed—that shall be a part
Of the undying things that peace hath wrought
Into a world of beauty in the heart,
    Not the forms passed away
    That life's strong current bore,
    Though the stream might not stay,
    The ocean shall restore.

What shall make trouble? not slow-wasting pain,
Not the impending, certain stroke of death :
These do but wear away, then snap, the chain
That binds the spirit down to things beneath,
    The quiet of the grave
    No trouble can destroy,
    He who is strong to save
    Shall break it but with joy.

Beyond.

WE must not doubt, or fear, or dread, that love for life
is only given,

And that the calm and sainted dead will meet estranged
and cold in heaven :—

Oh ! love were poor and vain indeed, based on so harsh and stern a creed.

True that this earth must pass away, with all the starry worlds of light,

With all the glory of the day, and calmer tenderness of night ;

For, in that radiant home can shine alone the immortal and divine.

Earth's lower things—her pride, her fame, her science, learning, wealth, and power,

Slow growths, that through long ages came, or fruits of some convulsive hour,

Whose very memory must decay—heaven is too pure for such as they.

They are complete : their work is done. So let them sleep in endless rest ;

Love's life is only here begun, nor is, nor can be, fully blest ;

It has no room to spread its wings. amid this crowd of meaner things.

Just for the very shadow thrown upon its sweetness here below,

The cross that it must bear alone, and bloody baptism of woe,

Crowned and completed through its pain, we know that it shall rise again.

So if its flame burn pure and bright, here, where our air is dark and dense,

And nothing in this world of night lives with a living so intense ;

When it shall reach its home at length—how bright its light ! how strong its strength !

And while the vain weak loves of earth (for such base counterfeits abound)
 Shall perish with what gave them birth, their graves are green and fresh around,
 No funeral song shall need to rise, for the true love that never dies.

If in my heart I now could fear that, risen again we should not know
 What was our life of life when here—the hearts we loved so much below ;
 I would arise this very day, and cast so poor a thing away.

But love is no such soulless clod : living, perfected, it shall rise
 Transfigured in the light of God, and giving glory to the skies :
 And that which makes this life so sweet, shall render heaven's joy complete.

Living.

AFTER A DEATH.

"That friend of mine who lives in God."

H live !
 (Thus seems it we should say to our beloved,
 Each held by such slight links so oft removed :)
 And I can let thee go to the world's end ;
 All precious names, companion, love, spouse, friend,
 Seal up in an eternal silence grey,
 Like a closed grave, till resurrection-day ;
 All sweet remembrances, hopes, dreams, desires,
 Heap, as one heaps up sacrificial fires ;
 Then turning, consecrate by loss, and proud
 Of penury—go back into the loud
 Tumultuous world again with never a moan,
 Save that which whispers still "My own, my own,"
 Under the same broad sky whose arch immense
 Enfolds us both like the arm of Providence :
 And thus contented I could live or die,
 With never clasp of hand or meeting eye
 On this side Paradise.—While thee I see
 Living to God, thou art alive to me.

Oh live !
And I, methinks, can let all dear rights go,
Fond duties melt away like April snow,
And sweet, sweet hopes, that took a life to weave,
Vanish like gossamers of autumn eve.
Nay, sometimes seems it I could even bear
To lay down humbly the love-crown I wear,
Steal from my palace, helpless, hopeless, poor,
And see another queen it at the door—
If only that the king had done no wrong,
If this my palace, where I dwelt so long,
Were not defiled by falsehood entering in :
There is no loss but change, no death but sin,
No parting, save the slow corrupting pain
Of murdered faith that never lives again.

Oh live !
(So endeth faint the low pathetic cry
Of love, whom death hath taught, love cannot die)
And I can stand above the daisy-bed,
The only pillow for thy dearest head,
There cover up for ever from my sight
My own, my own, my all of earth-delight ;
And enter the sea-cave of widowed years.
Where far, far off, the trembling gleam appears
Through which thy heavenly image slipped away,
And waits to meet me at the open day.
Only to me, my love, only to me
This cavern underneath the moaning sea ;
This long, long life that I alone must tread ;
To whom the living seem most like the dead.
Thou wilt be safe out on the happy shore ;
He who in God lives, liveth evermore.

For ever with the Lord.

SWEET home-echo on the pilgrim's way,
Thrice welcome message from a land of light,
As through a clouded sky the moonbeams stray,
So on eternity's deep shrouded night
Streams a mild radiance, from that cheering word,
"So shall we be for ever with the Lord."

At home with Jesus! He who went before,
For his own people mansions to prepare;
The soul's deep longings stilled, its conflicts o'er,
All rest and blessedness with Jesus there.—
What home like this can the wide earth afford?
"So shall we be for ever with the Lord."

With Him all gathered! to that blessed home,
Through all its windings, still the pathway tends;
While ever and anon bright glimpses come
Of that fair city where the journey ends.
Where all of bliss is centred in one word,
"So shall we be for ever with the Lord."

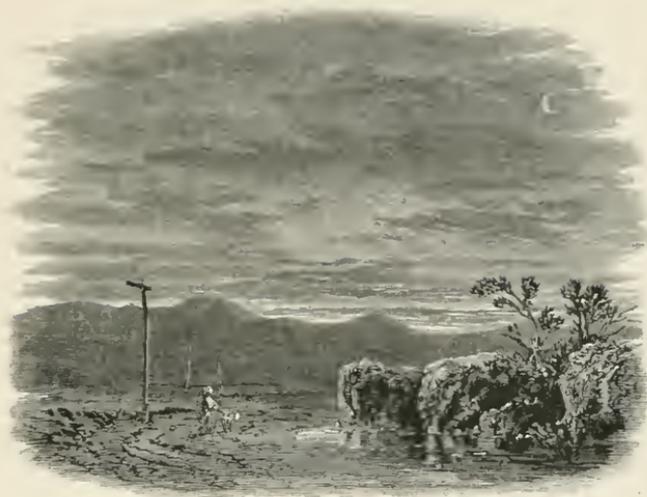

Here kindred hearts are severed far and wide,
By many a weary mile of land and sea,
Or life's all varied cares, and paths divide ;—
But yet a joyful gathering shall be.
The broken links repaired, the lost restored.
"So shall we be for ever with the Lord."

And is there ever perfect union here ?
Oh ! daily sins lamented and confessed,
They come between us and the friends most dear,
They mar our blessedness and break our rest.
With life we have the evils long deplored,
"So shall we be for ever with the Lord."

All prone to error—none set wholly free
From the old serpent's soul-ensnaring chain,
The truths one child of God can clearly see.
He seeks to make his brother feel in vain ;
But all shall harmonize in heaven's full chord.
"So shall we be for ever with the Lord."

O precious promise, mercifully given,
Well may it hush the wail of earthly woe :
O'er the dark passage to the gates of heaven,
The light of hope and resurrection throw.
Thanks for the blessed life-inspiring word,
"So shall we be for ever with the Lord."

Morning.

*"His compassions fail not. They are new every morning."
Lam. iii. 27, 23.*

UES of the rich unfolding morn,
That, ere the glorious sun be born,
By some soft touch invisible
Around his path are taught to swell :—

Thou rustling breeze, so fresh and gay
That danceth forth at opening day,
And, brushing by with joyous wing,
Wakenest each little leaf to sing :

Ye fragrant clouds of dewy steam,
By which deep grove and tangled stream
Pay, for soft rains in season given,
Their tribute to the genial heaven :—

Why waste your treasures of delight
Upon our thankless, joyless sight ;
Who, day by day to sin awake,
Seldom of heaven and you partake ?

Oh ! timely happy, timely wise,
 Hearts that with rising morn arise !
 Eyes that the beam celestial view,
 Which evermore makes all things new !

New every morning is the love
 Our wakening and uprising prove ;
 Through sleep and darkness safely brought,
 Restored to life, and power, and thought.

New mercies, each returning day,
 Hover around us while we pray ;
 New perils past, new sins forgiven,
 New thoughts of God, new hopes of heaven.

If, in our daily course, our mind
 Be set to hallow all we find,
 New treasures still, of countless price,
 God will provide for sacrifice.

Old friends, old scenes, will lovelier be,
 As more of heaven in each we see :
 Some softening gleam of love and prayer
 Shall dawn on every cross and care.

As for some dear familiar strain
 Untired we ask, and ask again,
 Ever, in its melodious store,
 Finding a spell unheard before.

Such is the bliss of souls serene,
 When they have sworn, and steadfast mean,
 Counting the cost in all t' espy
 Their God, in all themselves deny.

O could we learn that sacrifice,
 What lights would all around us rise !
 How would our hearts with wisdom talk
 Along life's dullest, dreariest walk !

We need not bid, for cloistered cell,
 Our neighbour and our work farewell,
 Nor strive to wind ourselves too high
 For sinful man beneath the sky :

The trivial round, the common task,
 Would furnish all we ought to ask :
 Room to deny ourselves ; a road
 To bring us daily nearer God.

Seek we no more ; content with these,
 Let present rapture, comfort, ease,
 As heaven shall bid them come and go :—
 The secret this of rest below.

Only, O Lord, in Thy dear love
 Fit us for perfect rest above ;
 And help us this and every day,
 To live more nearly as we pray.

Evening.

"Abide with us: for it is towards evening, and the day is far spent."
Luke xxiv. 29.

IS gone, that bright and orbèd blaze,
Fast fading from our wistful gaze ;
Yon mantling cloud has hid from sight
The last faint pulse of quivering light.

In darkness and in weariness
The traveller on his way must press,
No gleam to watch on tree or tower,
Whiling away the lonesome hour.

Sun of my soul ! Thou Saviour dear,
It is not night if Thou be near ;
Oh ! may no earth-born cloud arise
To hide Thee from Thy servant's eyes.

When round Thy wondrous works below
My searching rapturous glance I throw,
Tracing out wisdom, power, and love,
In earth or sky, in stream or grove ;

Or by the light Thy words disclose
 Watch time's full river as it flows,
 Scanning Thy gracious providence,
 Where not too deep for mortal sense :—

When with dear friends sweet talk I hold,
 And all the flowers of life unfold ;
 Let not my heart within me burn,
 Except in all I Thee discern.

When the soft dews of kindly sleep
 My wearied eyelids gently steep,
 Be my last thought how sweet to
 rest
 For ever on my Saviour's breast.

Abide with me from morn till eve,
 For without Thee I cannot live :
 Abide with me when night is nigh,
 For without Thee I dare not die.

Thou framer of the light and dark,
 Steer through the tempest Thine own ark :
 Amid the howling wintry sea
 We are in port if we have Thee.

Oh ! by Thine own sad burthen, borne
 So meekly up the hill of scorn,
 Teach Thou Thy priests their daily cross
 To bear as Thine, nor count it loss !

If some poor wandering child of Thine
 Have spurned to-day the voice divine,
 Now, Lord, the gracious work begin ;
 Let him no more lie down in sin.

Watch by the sick ; enrich the poor
 With blessings from Thy boundless store :
 Be every mourner's sleep to-night
 Like infants' slumbers, pure and light.

Come near and bless us when we wake,
 Ere through the world our way we take :
 Till in the ocean of Thy love
 We lose ourselves in heaven above.

Light of lights, enlighten me ... ..	114
Lord, and what shall this man do? ... ..	33
Lord, I am come alone with Thee ... ..	115
Lord! we sit and cry to Thee ... ..	78
Lord, what a change within us one short hour ... ..	87
"Lovest thou me?" I hear my Saviour say ... ..	108
Lowly and solemn be ... ..	129
Much have I borne, but not as I should bear ... ..	123
My God I thank Thee who hast made ... ..	123
My faith looks up to Thee ... ..	160

	PAGE
Nearer, my God, to Thee	120
Never hasting, never resting	25
Nothing resting in its own completeness	119
Not in the solitude	58
Nought see we here as yet in full perfection	29
Of all the thoughts of God that are	15
Oh for a heart to praise my God	106
Oh live! Thus seems it we should say to our beloved	169
Oh talk to me of heaven, I love	92
O sweet home echo on the pilgrim's way	171
Once slow and sad the evening fell	109
One sweetly solemn thought	90
Onward! the goal thou seekest	24
Pleasant are Thy courts above	111
Quiet from God! it cometh not to still	166
Redeemed, redeemed!	146
Robin, to the bare bough clinging	83
Rock of ages, cleft for me	160
Saviour divine, we bend before Thee lowly	105
Saviour of men, and Lord of love	101
See! the dull dense clouds are breaking	77
She, 'neath ice-mountains vast	47
Sold by them that should have loved thee	130
Some murmur when their sky is clear	124
Songs of praise the angels sang	118
Source of my life's refreshing springs	32
Speak gently! it is better far	51
Still evermore for some great strength we pray	50
Still nigh me, O my Saviour, stand	108
Strive; yet I do not promise	32
Sweet brooklet; ever gliding	59
Take them, O Death, and bear away	35
Tell me not, in mournful numbers	154
The baby wept	96
The blue Egean's countless waves in Sabbath sunlight smiled	112
The golden morn flames up the eastern sky	61

	PAGE
The hours are viewless angels ... ..	155
The ivy in a dungeon grew ... ..	22
The last sand from Time's hour glass ... ..	67
The quiet Sabbath sunshine played ... ..	134
The servant of God is on his way ... ..	138
The way seems dark about me, overhead ... ..	157
There is a name I love to hear ... ..	161
They came, they went : of pleasures passed away ... ..	29
Think gently of the erring ... ..	54
This world I deem ... ..	64
Thou art, O God, the life and light ... ..	144
Thou, who didst stoop below ... ..	86
Throughout this earth in stillness ... ..	118
Thy love shall chant itself its own beatitudes ... ..	35
Thy way, not mine, O Lord ... ..	71
'Tis gone, that bright and orbèd blaze ... ..	175
'Twas long ago in olden time ... ..	127
Under the bowering honeysuckle ... ..	55
Walk in the light, and thou shalt own ... ..	143
We ask for peace, O Lord ! ... ..	17
We love Thee, Lord, yet not alone ... ..	74
We must not doubt, or fear, or dread, that love for life is only given ... ..	168
We seek that land whose light e'en now ... ..	96
We would see Jesus, for the shadows lengthen ... ..	91
Wearied and worn with earthly cares, I yielded to repose ... ..	150
What must it be to dwell above ... ..	98
What no human eye hath seen ... ..	147
What sudden blaze of song ... ..	79
When first our Lord came down on earth ... ..	132
When in the silvery moonlight ... ..	153
When prayer delights thee least, then learn to say ... ..	19
Whither, midst falling dew ... ..	45
Who shall ascend to the holy place ? ... ..	99
Ye dainty mosses, lichens grey ... ..	36

THE ORIGINAL EDITION

OF

Christian Lyrics

May still be had in fcap. Svo., cloth extra, price 3s. 6d. London: HAMILTON, ADAMS & Co.

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

'This is one of the most attractive volumes we have seen.'

'The book includes most of what we think the sweetest and truest and best of modern Religious Poems.'

'We know of no recent publication of the same kind which is so excellent throughout. An admirable selection, and the book is quite a gem in paper, printing, and binding.'

'Among the numerous selections of sacred poetry which appear in our day, it is very rarely that we meet with one of so high a class as the elegant little volume before us.'

Later Lyrics of the Christian Church:

A COMPANION VOLUME TO "CHRISTIAN LYRICS." Fcap. Svo. cloth extra, price 3s. 6d. London: HAMILTON, ADAMS & Co.

'This is a graceful and elegant little volume, for which we may predict a large sale. The lyrics are well selected, and comprise some of the choicest specimens of modern sacred poetry. Numerous as have been the selections of poetry both secular and religious which have been published of late years, the public taste never seems to weary of them, and the present work deserves to take its place among them as an established favourite. It is intended as a companion volume to an earlier compilation by the same hand called "Christian Lyrics," and to form with that earlier compilation a collection as nearly complete as possible. Certainly no pains have been spared to attain this end.'

Thoughts from a Girl's Life.

Fcap. Svo. cloth extra. Price 4s. 6d. London: MACMILLAN & Co.

ATHENÆUM.—'This is a little volume of sweet and earnest verses, especially addressed to girls, by one who can sympathize with them. . . . The poems are all of them graceful, and they are marked throughout by an accent of reality.'

LONDON REVIEW.—'A charming unpretentious collection of poems. . . . pleasant reading for men as well as maidens. . . . Her poems have many charming elements, above all things, truth. Observation of nature, feeling, and a grave, quiet vein of thought, are to be found in these pages.'

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE.—'It is a good book to have written, good and true, and valuable, too—as truth always is. . . . There we find a clear, broad, pellucid picture of a girl's life. . . . Her rhythm is smooth and musical; her power of expression clear; her style terse and Saxon.'

SPECTATOR.—'There is in at least two or three of Miss Fletcher's poems a delicate transparency and music which raise them decidedly above the level of mere "elegant verses."'

ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—'These poems are equally admirable in point of diction, melody, and sentiment.'

JOHN BULL.—'Miss Fletcher's little volume has a simple truth and quiet beauty of its own, which will win many a response from the interesting readers whom she more particularly addresses. . . . Her pages are full of the gentle fancies which make up the poetical aspect of an English girl's life.'

NONCONFORMIST.—'A very genuine and delightful little book, deeply thoughtful, sweetly musical, full of heart, and bathed in cheerful piety. There is an exquisite tenderness in the two or three poems that have facts for their material; and living memories, and personal affections for their inspiration.'

THE BAYARD SERIES.

CHOICE BOOKS FOR COMPANIONSHIP AT HOME AND ABROAD.

DR JOHNSON said—'After all, those books which can be carried to the fireside and read thereat are the best and most popular.' Add to this, excellence of printing and paper, attractiveness, elegance of shape, worthiness of subject, soundness and purity, and we have all that Author and Publisher can give or the public demand. The Publishers wish to provide, under the above general Title, a series of Books which shall be not mere empty shams, in gay covers, but such works as shall be worthy of being preserved and reverted to for years to come. The "Bayard Series" will have for its motto—"Spotless and Fearless" ("Sans peur et sans reproche"); and as the Publishers have no fear of their success, so they can have no reproach should they fail.

THE SERIES WILL COMPRISE

HISTORY, BIOGRAPHY, TRAVEL, ESSAYS, NOVELETTES, ANA, &c.,

Which, under an Editor of known taste and ability, will be very choicely printed on toned paper, with Vignette Title-page, Notes, and Index. Size, a handsome 16mo., very neatly bound in cloth extra, averaging about 220 pages each Volume.

Each Volume, complete in itself, Price Half-a-Crown.

The earlier Volumes will consist of

THE STORY of the CHEVALIER BAYARD,

from the French of the Loyal Servant, M. de Berville, and others. By E. WALFORD With Notes and Introduction and Vignette Portrait, &c.

'——— Praise of him must walk the earth
For ever, and to noble deeds give birth,
This is the happy warrior; this is he
That every man in arms would wish to be.'—WORDSWORTH.

THE ESSAYS OF ABRAHAM COWLEY,

comprising all his Prose Works; the Celebrated Character of Cromwell, Cutter of Coleman Street, &c. &c. With Life, Notes, and Illustrations by Dr. HURD and others. Newly edited.

'Cowley's prose stamps him as a man of genius and an improver of the English Language.'—THOS. CAMPBELL.

ABDALLAH and the FOUR-LEAVED SHAM-

ROCK. By M. de LABOULLAYE, of the French Academy. Translated by M. C. Booth.

One of the noblest and purest French stories ever written.

SAINT LOUIS, KING OF FRANCE. The

curious and characteristic life of this Monarch by DE JOINVILLE. Translated by James Hutton.

'A King, a Hero, and a Man.'—GIBBON.

TABLE-TALK and OPINIONS of NAPOLEON

THE GREAT: a compilation, from the best sources, of this great man's shrewd and often prophetic thoughts, forming the best inner life of the most extraordinary man of modern times.

The aim of the Publishers will be not only to put forward good Books, pure and sound in morals, but to produce them in such an elegant and recherché style as to make them attractive to all classes of readers; and they wish especially to add that each work may be relied on as having undergone careful editing, and as being complete in itself.

* * Several of the Volumes will be ready for publication early in the coming season.
